Hello John & Mary,

Finally found Jake and Christian's sister and her husband. WHAT a story they would have told. Be sure to read to the end.

Found the death certificates for William online and Louisa's in a book.

Louise Baker Gafney
Death Record, Washington County, Indiana
Age: 55y
Born: ca 1868, Kentucky
Died: 7 February 1923, Washington County, IN
Parents: James F. Baker & Mary Catherine Scarboro
Spouse: William Gafney (d. 13 Feb. 1947)
Married: 15 Jan. 1887, Garrard Co., KY
Buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN

++++++++++++++
Death Certificate 6444

William Gafney
born: 22 Nov. 1867, Kentucky
died: 13 Feb. 1947, Campbellsburg, Washington County, IN Age: 79y,2m, 21d
Parents: George Gafney & Emma/Emily Sandy Renfro
Spouse: Laura Gafney
Cause: Acute Coronary colusion 1/2 y
Residence: West Walnut St., Campbellsburg, Washington Co., IN

++++++++++++++++++
They had two children: Infant and Cephus Gafney; Found Cephus Death Record online.

+++++++++++++++++
Cephus Gafney
Age: 35
Born: ca 1886, Garrard County, Kentucky
Died: 25 October 1921, Washington County, Indiana
Parents: Louise Baker and William Gafney, both born KY
Spouse: Laura Mae Wooten
Married: 24 March 1915, Danville, Boyle, Kentucky
Probably buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN
He had two daughters: Golda Ellen (md. Robert Blincoe) & Silvia M. (md. Lester M. Jean)

Laura Mae Wooten
b. 1900, Kentucky
d. 1971, Washington County, IN
Buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN
Parents: Henry E. Wooten & Mary (?)
Spouse 1: Cephus Gafney
Spouse 2: William Gafney
Not able to find the second marriage; maybe common law marriage.

Both of their daughters and spouses are buried in Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN.

Yes, that is what I found. Laura Wooten "married" second before 1940 to her father-in-law, because she is listed as his wife in the 1940 Washington County, IN Census along with her daughters.

Thought that you might enjoy this interesting find to add to your BAKER book. Hope that you have a family member that is interested in genealogy or will put your books in a library for others to enjoy. If Andrew, who is interested in genealogy (won State in 4-H one year and Reserve in 4-H genealogy last year), he does not take them, then they are going to the JCHC library.

Enjoy and many blessings, romantically known as the Gold Hole Tower.

Richmond's remoteness, rather than its strength, seems to have been its main protection, for it escaped both the Wars of the Roses and the Civil War.

Henry VIII made his illegitimate son, Henry Fitzroy, Duke of Richmond in 1525, but the lad died when seventeen. The title was conferred elsewhere but died out again. Charles II then revived it for his illegitimate son, Charles Lennox, and the title has stayed in that family ever since.

Closed Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, 24, 25, 26 December and 1 January.

RIPLEY

The Ingilby family have lived here since the fourteenth century. Ripley was granted to Thomas Ingilby for saving the life of Edward III when hunting. Much of the castle was rebuilt in 1780, although the gatehouse is fifteenth century.

In Ripley, 3½ miles north of Harrogate, 7½ miles from Ripon. Open: Easter Sunday and Monday, 11 a.m.–6 p.m. then May–September, Sundays 2–6 p.m. and Bank Holidays 11 a.m.–6 p.m. Open daily July and August 2–6 p.m.
Privately owned:
Sir Thomas Ingilby, Bt.

SCARBOROUGH

The site was fortified from a very early period. The Romans had a signal station here; they used points like Scarborough to give warning of the sighting of Saxon raiders out at sea. However, in later years Scarborough itself was sometimes sacked. Inevitably, a place of such strategic importance would see more than its fair share of violence, and the 100 feet high keep, which had been built by Henry II, was often put to a military test. In the Civil War Scarborough Castle was besieged twice and severely damaged in the process. In December 1914 it was bombarded by the German navy. In addition to its military history, the castle was also used as a prison. George Fox (see Launceston Castle) was once imprisoned here. The Well of Our Lady, at the cliff top, was long believed to have special healing powers.

Scarborough is a vast, memorable castle in a superb position. It should not be missed.

Scarborough Castle is on a headland above the town, 300 feet above sea-level. It is in the care of the Department of the Environment, and open:
15 March–15 October, 9.30 a.m.–6.30 p.m. daily including Sunday;
16 October–14 March, 9.30 a.m.– 4 p.m.
Closed Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, 24, 25, 26 December and 1 January.

INDIAN DEED

Editor's note: the following deed is a result of the respect William Penn extended to the American Indians who had been living on the land Penn had been granted by King Charles II of England. King Charles II owed William Penn's father, Sir William Penn a famous English admiral, a large sum. Following his father's death, young William Penn negotiated for a tract of land in America as payment for this debt. In 1681, King Charles II, out of "regard to the memorie and meritts of his late father," gave young William Penn a huge tract of land and named it "Pennsylvania".

According to Edward R. Barnsley in his book, HISTORIC NEWTOWN, negotiations were made by Penn's kinsman and deputy, William Markham. The purchase included all the land now contained within the townships of Bristol, Falls, Middleton, Newtown, Lower Makefield, and parts of Upper Makefield and of Wrightstown. This deed was the authority by which Penn granted his land clear of Indian encumbrances. All land titles in lower Bucks County are, therefore traceable to the Royal Charter from Charles II on March 4 1681, and to this Indian deed.

WILL OF JOHN SCARBOROUGH, SR.

In the name of God Amen, I John (Scarborough) of the parish of St. Sepulchers, London, blacksmith being in perfect health and of sound mind and memory thanks be to God for calling unto mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men one to dye, do make and ordain this my last will and testament consisting of two parts in manner and forme following. That is to say first and principally I give my soul into the hands of God who gave it to me and for my body I recommend it to the earth to be buried in decent manner as my executor hereafter named shall think fit. And as touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life I give, devise, bequeath and dispose the same in manner and form following:

First I give and devise unto my eldest son, John Scarborough, for his life my 250 acres of land with the town lot which lyeth in the county of Bucks in the province of Pennsylvania in America which said land my said son now in possession of, and which said land butteth at one end thereof upon the land of William Paxton and Henry Paxton and at the other end upon the land of Nicholas Vaughan. And my desire and meaning is that after the decease of my said son, John Scarbrough, I give and devise one hundred and fifty acres thereof unto my grandson William Scarbrough for his life and to the right heirs of his body and the other hundred acres reducing the said two hundred and fifty acres to be at the sole disposal of my said son John and as for all my personal estate here in England which consists of ready money, bond bills, debts, securities, goods and household stuff, chattels and implements of my trade whatsoever I give and bequeath the same to my dear and loving wife Sarah Scarbrough during her life for her use, the paying and satisfying thereout my funeral charges and all such debts as I shall owe to any person or persons without delay.

And also desiring my said wife, to give the residue of what she shall leave at her decease to my son William Scarbrough and my daughter Elizabeth Scarbrough to be equally divided between them share and share alike. And of this my last will and testament I made and ordain, revoke and annul all former wills and testaments by me at any time heretofore made ratifying and confirming this and none other to be my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have here unto set my hand and seal this fifteenth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and six. Signed and sealed by John Scarbrough.

Declaration read -

John Scarbrough complains against Joseph Smallwood in a plea for that whereas the sd Joseph Smallwood did employ the wife of the sd John Scarbrough to wash for him his linnen &c. which she accordingly did to the value of twenty-seven shillings, - with several goods delivered to him as may appear by account herewith in court to be produced; as also the sd Joseph Smallwood did agree with the sd John Scarbrough to keep and nurse his child for him; the sd Joseph Smallwood did agree and assume upon himselfe to pay foure shillings for every week he should keep and nurse sd child - and within the year the child was so put to him; - thirty shillings - in part whereof the sd Joseph Smallwood has not yet paid and yet this thrity shillings the sd John Scarbrough hath often demanded of the sd Joseph Smallwood to pay what was due to him for keeping sd child and upon the sd amount he the sd Joseph Smallwood hath heretofore refused and still doth refuse to pay what is due - therefore the plaintiff commences the suit and craves judgment of the court for the sd twenty-seven shillings and for nursing and keeping the sd child after the rate of foure shillings a week until the time of holding this court with damages and cost of suite.

The plt. attested the truth of the declaration and that he could not give any more credit. It was considered by the court the Plt. should recover that was due to him for hursing the child and for the goods and washing with costs of suite and that he should have execution for the same to be levied on the goods and chattels of the deft.

THE BUCKS COUNTY QUARTERLY MEETING OF FRIENDS

1695, 12 month, 19th day

Whereas it is reported to this Meeting that Francis Russell, late of this County, deceased, by his late will did bequeath something to the poor of ye people called Quakers within this County and Samuel Carpenter, his executor is willing to pay the same to such poor as shall be recommended to him, therefore this Meeting thought fit to request him to let the following sums be paid to ye persons hereafter named.

NO. 8 - THE SCARBOROUGH TRACTS

The first purchase of land made by John Scarborough, a blacksmith of the city of London, from William Penn, of Worminghurst, county of Sussex, England, was made July 3, 1682, and the deed is recorded at Doylestown, Book 2, page 10. The amount of land purchased was 250 acres to be located after arrival in the province, and the consideration was 5 pounds and a yearly quit rent.

In the year 1696 John Scarborough, of London, gave power of attorney to his son, John Scarborough, Jr., of Solebury, to make sale of such of his lands as was desirable, as appears by the following recital: Whereas, John Scarborough, of the Parish of St. Sepulchers, London, (blacksmith) hereby constitutes and appoints his son, John Scarborough, Jr., "living in the County of Bucks," his true and lawful attorney, etc. This instrument of writing was made October 15th, in the year 1696, and was acknowledged before William Penn and is recorded at Doylestown, book 2, page 251. It is not known that John Scarborough, the London blacksmith, ever came to this country. John Scarborough, Jr., first settled upon tract no. 10 about the year 1705, as will be shown when we come to that tract. The purchase of the two tracts of land, comprising no. 8, was effected in the following manner: William Penn, by his commissioners, Edward Shippen, Griffith Owen and Thomas Story, by a patent dated December 29, 1702, conveyed a tract of land in Solebury, containing 500 acres, to James Logan. By a second patent dated November 30, 1708, Logan was granted an additional 320 acres. James Logan by deed dated March 25th, 1709, conveyed the same to Jacob Holcombe, who, the next day, March, 26th, 1709, conveyed the same two tracts of land to John Scarborough. This was no doubt an exchange for the 500 acre tract (no. 10), previously occupied by John Scarborough since 1705. Of the family of John Scarborough nothing is known except what has been gathered from the record of deeds and wills at Doylestown, and from the records of Falls and Buckingham monthly meetings of the religious Society of Friends. The name of his wife was Mary Scarborough. The records of Falls monthly meeting show that on 9 mo. 28, 1710, Sarah Scarborough was married to George Haworth at the Meeting House in Buckingham township. The records of the same meeting show that in 10th-mo., 1712, Mary Scarborough, daughter of John and Mary Scarborough, was married to Samuel Pickering, a member with a certificate from Middletown monthly meeting. The records of the same meeting further show that on 10th-mo. 29th, 1719, Elizabeth Scarborough, third daughter of John and Mary Scarborough, was married to John Fisher at the Meeting House in Buckingham township. Here we have the record of the marriages of three daughters of John Scarborough at the Falls meeting, between the years 1710 and 1719. John Scarborough lived in Solebury at this time, and prior to the year 1720 all the Buckingham and Solebury Friends belonged to Falls Monthly Meeting, and the marriages were all recorded there. Robert Scarborough, a son of John and Mary Scarborough was probably married in 1733.

The records of Buckingham meeting do not show this marriage. The name of his wife was Elizabeth. The Buckingham records do show the date of birth of two of their children before they removed to Virginia, viz., John, born 11th-mo. 28th, 1734; Mary, born 9th-mo. 18th, 1736.

Sarah Scarborough, daughter of John Scarborough, who married George Haworth in 1710, married the second time, Mathew Hall, who came from Staffordshire, England, about the year 1701. They were married in 1732, and lived in the northwest corner of Buckingham, near Cottageville, and subsequently removed to Chester county, Pa. Then followed three generations of Mahlon Halls, in succession to Mathias H. Hall, who is a lineal descendant of John Scarborough, and resides near Wrightstown, Bucks county.

Hannah Scarborough, the youngest daughter of John Scarborough, and who was single at the time of her father's death, married Benjamin Fell at Buckingham July 27th, 1728. John Scarborough, the third, son of John and Mary Scarborough, married Jane Marjarum at Buckingham, in 1731.

From the records at Doylestown, and other sources, it has been learned that John and Mary Scarborough had three sons, named William, Robert and John.

John Scarborough, the second, in his life time disposed of portions of his real estate, as follows: By a deed dated 8th-mo. 19th, 1711, he sold 200 acres of land to Henry Paxson, off the east side of his tract, and adjoining the Great Spring and Dawson tracts. By another deed dated February 8th, 1714, he sold 200 acres to his son-in-law Samuel Pickering, adjoining the land sold to Henry Paxson. The consideration, or purchase money, for the 200 acres sold to Samuel Pickering was £ 58; and the deed is recorded in book 5, page 73. His next sale of land was to his son, John Scarborough, the 3d, December 17th, 1724, and recorded in book 26, page 298. The amount of land sold this time was 155 acres, and the consideration £50.

This farm was on the northwest corner of his tract, and comprised nearly one-half of the 320 acre tract. This farm is now owned and occupied by Wilson Pearson, of Solebury.

JOHN SCARBOROUGH'S WILL, 1727

The will of John Scarborough the second, which was proven October 2, 1727, disposed of the remainder of his real estate and personal property as follows: "To my son Wm. Scarbrough 60 acres of land with the Little Meadow therein wch he hath now in his Poss[ess]ion...," to "my loveing wife Mary Scarbrough my Plantation Contg 200 Acres of Land having the lake meadow therein for & During her naturall life & at her Decease I will yt my son Wm. enjoy the same for & During his naturall life & after his Decease to ye Male Heirs of his Body lawfully Begotten & if there be none such at the Death of my son Wm. Then my will is that the Said Plantation Goe to the next Male heir at Law of the Scarborough's." (This plantation no doubt comprised the two farms now owned by John H. Ely and J. Howard Atkinson.) He left to his son Robert Scarborough a farm of 150 acres on the northeast corner of his tract, and with the 155 acres sold to his son John in 1724, comprised nearly all of the 320 acre tract.

Some building lots in Philadelphia were also divided by his will among his sons and daughters. Some of the most valuable of his personal property was to be disposed of at the death or re-marriage of his wife as follows: "To my Son Wm. my Bible & my brass mortar To my son Robert my Silver Dram Cup & my Pewter Salt Seller To my Daughter Sarah Haworth my brass warming Pan To my Daughter Mary Pickring my Great Iron Pottage Pott To my daughter Elizth Fisher my Silver Spoon & a Pinquishin with a Drawer for it & a Pewter Still To my Daughter Hannah one Brass Candle Stick & a Pair of Iron Snuffers & a Joint Stool."

The witnesses to this will were Thomas Canby, Henry Paxson and Joseph Fell. The executors were his wife Mary and his sons William and John Scarborough.

The marriage of William Scarborough I have not been able to find, but from the record of deeds have learned that the name of his wife was also Mary.

The homestead farm was on the west side of the 500 acre tract, and adjoined the Great Spring tract, which after the widow's death became the property of William Scarborough, as provided by the will. Just when this cannot be easily ascertained, but when the survey for the sale of James Logan to Jacob Dean was made in 1747, the recital was "by land of William Scarborough." William Scarborough sold this land to his son, Euclides Scarborough, by deed dated 3d month 26, 1762, and recorded in book 28, page 177.

Robert Scarborough was probably married in the year 1733, and took possession of the farm left him by his father, where he no doubt resided until the year 1737, a period of four years, when he sold the same to John Rich, by deed dated 6th month 10th, 1737. John Scarborough, third, married Jane Marjarum at Buckingham meeting in 1731. He afterward became an eminent minister on the society of Friends, and traveled extensively in the ministry in the States of New Jersey, Virginia and North Carolina.

After selling his farm to John Rich in 1737, Robert Scarborough removed with his family to Virginia, as the following old letter very plainly shows:

LETTER OF ROBERT SCARBOROUGH

Virginia Colony, Orange county, 9th month 5th, 1738. To my loving brother and sister, John and Jane Scarborough:

This comes with kind love to you and yours, and to our dear mother, and to all brothers and sisters, and to all our relations. Hoping that you all are in the enjoyment of health, as we and our children are at present, thanks be to God for it. We got along pretty well, are settled now on 300 acres of land. We bought ye land, being good, with good meadows, and good water, with the consent of taking up 300 acres more. And a meeting is rent about a mile off, and a mill is building about as far off, and we liked ye place very well. We have bought and paid for two cows and we are in a likely way to do well by Divine assistance, yet never fails them yet those who trust in Him. Intend to come up in the fall if health permits. My wife is desires to be remembered to her friends, which is commendable, and desires thee to get a few lines from her old neighbors, which will be very satisfactory to us. So we remain your loving and well wishing brother and sister.

Robert Scarborough
Elizabeth Scarborough

P.S. I received thy letter a few days ago. I also received a letter from Benjamin Fell sometime before, which said letter gave us great satisfaction to receive all your welfare. This is ye fourth letter I have sent."

(The foregoing letter was directed as follows:)

To John Scarborough in Solebury, in Bucks County Pencilvania with care and speed.

The paper upon which it was written has become yellow and brown with age, and was found in Thomas Paxson's old Bible, printed in 1706, and is now in the possession of Wallace Paxson, of Solebury.

THE PICKERING BRANCH

With the exception of the 200 acres sold to Henry Paxson in 1711, the balance of the two original tracts of 820 acres appears to have been settled by the Scarborough and Pickering families, which had inter-married in 1712. We will now go back for a short time, and trace the history of the Pickering branch of the occupants of this tract. Samuel Pickering, who married Mary Scarborough in 1712, and who bought and settled upon the 200 acres purchased of his father-in-law in 1714, died intestate January 10th, 1727. His widow administered to his estate, her brother, John Scarborough, and Benjamin Canby being her securities. John Dawson, James Hambleton, Griffith Davis and Joseph Fell were the appraisers. As showing the value of real estate and personal property at that time a copy of the inventory is here given, which was dated April 10th, 1727:

200 acres of land and buildings, £160
Cash and wearing apparel, £24
28 acres of wheat, £14
2 mares and colts, £15
4 horses, £10
4 cows and young cattle, £16
6 sheep and 2 lambs, £2
Oxen, £7, 10s

NO. 8 - THE SCARBOROUGH TRACTS

The first purchase of land made by John Scarborough, a blacksmith of the city of London, from William Penn, of Worminghurst, county of Sussex, England, was made July 3, 1682, and the deed is recorded at Doylestown, Book 2, page 10. The amount of land purchased was 250 acres to be located after arrival in the province, and the consideration was 5 pounds and a yearly quit rent.

In the year 1696 John Scarborough, of London, gave power of attorney to his son, John Scarborough, Jr., of Solebury, to make sale of such of his lands as was desirable, as appears by the following recital: Whereas, John Scarborough, of the Parish of St. Sepulchers, London, (blacksmith) hereby constitutes and appoints his son, John Scarborough, Jr., "living in the County of Bucks," his true and lawful attorney, etc. This instrument of writing was made October 15th, in the year 1696, and was acknowledged before William Penn and is recorded at Doylestown, book 2, page 251. It is not known that John Scarborough, the London blacksmith, ever came to this country. John Scarborough, Jr., first settled upon tract no. 10 about the year 1705, as will be shown when we come to that tract. The purchase of the two tracts of land, comprising no. 8, was effected in the following manner: William Penn, by his commissioners, Edward Shippen, Griffith Owen and Thomas Story, by a patent dated December 29, 1702, conveyed a tract of land in Solebury, containing 500 acres, to James Logan. By a second patent dated November 30, 1708, Logan was granted an additional 320 acres. James Logan by deed dated March 25th, 1709, conveyed the same to Jacob Holcombe, who, the next day, March, 26th, 1709, conveyed the same two tracts of land to John Scarborough. This was no doubt an exchange for the 500 acre tract (no. 10), previously occupied by John Scarborough since 1705. Of the family of John Scarborough nothing is known except what has been gathered from the record of deeds and wills at Doylestown, and from the records of Falls and Buckingham monthly meetings of the religious Society of Friends. The name of his wife was Mary Scarborough. The records of Falls monthly meeting show that on 9 mo. 28, 1710, Sarah Scarborough was married to George Haworth at the Meeting House in Buckingham township. The records of the same meeting show that in 10th-mo., 1712, Mary Scarborough, daughter of John and Mary Scarborough, was married to Samuel Pickering, a member with a certificate from Middletown monthly meeting. The records of the same meeting further show that on 10th-mo. 29th, 1719, Elizabeth Scarborough, third daughter of John and Mary Scarborough, was married to John Fisher at the Meeting House in Buckingham township. Here we have the record of the marriages of three daughters of John Scarborough at the Falls meeting, between the years 1710 and 1719. John Scarborough lived in Solebury at this time, and prior to the year 1720 all the Buckingham and Solebury Friends belonged to Falls Monthly Meeting, and the marriages were all recorded there. Robert Scarborough, a son of John and Mary Scarborough was probably married in 1733.

The records of Buckingham meeting do not show this marriage. The name of his wife was Elizabeth. The Buckingham records do show the date of birth of two of their children before they removed to Virginia, viz., John, born 11th-mo. 28th, 1734; Mary, born 9th-mo. 18th, 1736.

Sarah Scarborough, daughter of John Scarborough, who married George Haworth in 1710, married the second time, Mathew Hall, who came from Staffordshire, England, about the year 1701. They were married in 1732, and lived in the northwest corner of Buckingham, near Cottageville, and subsequently removed to Chester county, Pa. Then followed three generations of Mahlon Halls, in succession to Mathias H. Hall, who is a lineal descendant of John Scarborough, and resides near Wrightstown, Bucks county.

Hannah Scarborough, the youngest daughter of John Scarborough, and who was single at the time of her father's death, married Benjamin Fell at Buckingham July 27th, 1728. John Scarborough, the third, son of John and Mary Scarborough, married Jane Marjarum at Buckingham, in 1731.

SCARBOROUGH FAMILY. The family of Scarborough is an old one, and doubtless derived its name from the locality where its early progenitors resided when surnames first came to be used. Scarborough Castle, an old Norman fortress in Yorkshire, England, is built on a high, narrow, rocky promontory, extending seaward about a half-mile, at the foot of which the ancient seaport of the same name is nestled in a sheltered nook along South Bay. The modern town of Scarborough is now a noted watering place of about 40,000 inhabitants, and a few families of the name of Scarborough still reside there. The name is derived from its location, the word Scear, or Scaur, meaning a sharp rock or crag, and "burg,' or borough, meaning a town or fortress, the combination indicating and literally meaning a town or fort on or near the crags or rocks. The arms of the family consist of a castle by the sea, a beacon flaming on its turrets, the sun rising in the east, and a manned ship at anchor.

Several representatives of the family, at that time scattered over different parts of England, emigrated to America during the period of the early settlement of the colonies, one settling in Boston, Massachusetts, another in Connecticut, and still another on the eastern shore of Virginia.. Edward Scarborough was the first surveyor general of Virginia. Charles Scarborough was the physician to King Charles I.

The earliest known progenitor of the Bucks county family of Scarborough was John Scarbrough, of the parish of St. Sepulchre's, London. He was known there as a blacksmith and coachmaker. He was a member of Peel Monthly Meeting of Friends, whose place of worship was in Peel Court, near 65 St. John street. He is referred to in the minutes of this meeting under date of 10 mo. 26, 1677. He signed his name "Scarbrough," as did his descendants until about 1800, although in the body of the papers executed by them the lawyers and conveyancers frequently wrote the name "Scarborough." The Scarborough, Scarboro, Scarbrough, Scardeburg and Scarburg families are probably of one descent.

On 7 mo. 4, 1682, he purchased of William Penn 250 acres of land to be laid out in Pennsylvania, and embarked for the Deleware to locate his purchase and prepare a home for his family in the new province. He left his wife in England, but took with him his only son John, then a youth. The 250 acres were surveyed to him in Middletown township, near the present site of Langhorne, where he was one of the first settlers. After remaining for two years and preparing a rude home in the wilderness, he embarked for England with the intention of bringing over his wife, leaving his son in the care of a Friend until he was able to take charge of his father's farm. His wife, not being a Quaker, declined to come to Pennsylvania, and, the persecution of Friends having somewhat abated, he decided to remain in England and never return to America. In 1696 he executed and sent to his son John a power of attorney to convey his lands in Bucks county. His early experiences among the Indians are mentioned on page 222 of vol. 1, of Proud's "History of Pennsylvania."' He died 5, mo. 21, 1706, aged sixty years.

John Scarbrough, Jr., remained in Bucks county, when his father returned to England in 1684. His actual residence from that date until 1689, when he is shown to have been residing at Neshaminy, (the name by which Middletown Meeting was first known, as well as the locality), is somewhat a matter of conjecture. A sketch published at page 244, vol. 29, of "The Friend," states that he was born in London in 1667. Samuel Preston, a great-grandson, born in 1756, in a letter written in 1823, says that he ran away when a youth and resided several years among the Indians, learned their language, and later officiated at Indian treaties as interpreter. It is said that at one time he was instrumental in preventing an Indian war. He is known to have been a great friend of the Indians, and is said to have visited them on religious missions. He married about 1690, but, though he was an active member of Middletown Meeting, the maiden name of his wife Mary has never been ascertained. On the records of this meeting appear the dates of the birth of four of his children, his eldest child William being born 10 mo. 30, 1691. In pursuance of the power of attorney from his father, he sold the Middletown land and obtained a warrant of survey for 510 acres in Solebury, on which he settled about 1700, exchanging it later for 820 acres adjoining. The 510 acre tract is at the present time bounded as follows, viz: Beginning at the Five Points, and thence extending 250 perches along the road leading toward Lahaska, to the first right hand road, thence along the latter road 324 perches to the road leading from Carversville to Aquetong, thence along this road 250 perches to the Mountain road, thence along that road to the place of beginning. The 820 acre tract began at a point where the Lower York road crossed the eastermost boundary of the 510 acre tract, and thence extended northwestward 410 perches to the Upper York road, thence along that road 324 perches to a road located between the present Solebury Creamery and Centre Hill, thence along this latter road, southeast, 410 perches to a point and thence southwest 324 perches to the place of beginning. A sketch published on page 244 of Volume 29 of the "Friend" indicates that he was the first white man to settle in the Buckingham-Solebury valley. On 6 mo. 5, 1702, he and John Bye requested that a Meeting be set apart at Buckingham, and Falls' Monthly Meeting consented that a First Day Meeting be held at the house of Thomas Bye. The Quarterly Meeting records mention him as a minister and also in a list of "Friends eminent for their piety and virtue since their settlement in America." He was an elder of Buckingham Meeting prior to its establishment into a Monthly Meeting, and later one of its leading ministers. He died on his Solebury plantation, 1 mo. 27, 1727, devising it and the "Liberty Lot" at Fifth and Spruce streets, Philadelphia, patented to him in 1705, in right of his father's purchase of 250 acres, to his sons, William, John and Robert. He was one of the commissioners appointed by the Pennsylvania assembly in 1711 to lay out the York road from Reading's Ferry, now Centre Bridge, to Philadelphia.

John Scarborough, the second, in his life time disposed of portions of his real estate, as follows: By a deed dated 8th-mo. 19th, 1711, he sold 200 acres of land to Henry Paxson, off the east side of his tract, and adjoining the Great Spring and Dawson tracts. By another deed dated February 8th, 1714, he sold 200 acres to his son-in-law Samuel Pickering, adjoining the land sold to Henry Paxson. The consideration, or purchase money, for the 200 acres sold to Samuel Pickering was £58; and the deed is recorded in book 5, page 73. His next sale of land was to his son, John Scarborough, the 3d, December 17th, 1724, and recorded in book 26, page 298. The amount of land sold this time was 155 acres, and the consideration £50.

JOHN SCARBOROUGH'S WILL, 1727

The will of John Scarborough the second, which was proven October 2, 1727, disposed of the remainder of his real estate and personal property as follows: "To my son Wm. Scarbrough 60 acres of land with the Little Meadow therein wch he hath now in his Poss[ess]ion...," to "my loveing wife Mary Scarbrough my Plantation Contg 200 Acres of Land having the lake meadow therein for & During her naturall life & at her Decease I will yt my son Wm. enjoy the same for & During his naturall life & after his Decease to ye Male Heirs of his Body lawfully Begotten & if there be none such at the Death of my son Wm. Then my will is that the Said Plantation Goe to the next Male heir at Law of the Scarborough's." (This plantation no doubt comprised the two farms now owned by John H. Ely and J. Howard Atkinson.) He left to his son Robert Scarborough a farm of 150 acres on the northeast corner of his tract, and with the 155 acres sold to his son John in 1724, comprised nearly all of the 320 acre tract.

The witnesses to this will were Thomas Canby, Henry Paxson and Joseph Fell. The executors were his wife Mary and his sons William and John Scarborough.

With the exception of the 200 acres sold to Henry Paxson in 1711, the balance of the two original tracts of 820 acres appears to have been settled by the Scarborough and Pickering families, which had inter-married in 1712. We will now go back for a short time, and trace the history of the Pickering branch of the occupants of this tract. Samuel Pickering, who married Mary Scarborough in 1712, and who bought and settled upon the 200 acres purchased of his father-in-law in 1714, died intestate January 10th, 1727.

The two hundred acres of land which was sold by John Scarborough to Henry Paxson, by deed dated August 14 and 15, 1711, has not as yet received attention. It occupies the southeastern corner of the 500-acre tract, being bounded on the south by the Logan tract and on the east by the Dawson tract.

Henry Paxson, by his will, dated 4-mo. 23, 1723, made his son-in-law, John Plumley, and his nephew, William Paxson, his executors, who deeded the same to Henry Paxson, Jr., 6-mo. 2, 1724.

Henry Paxson, Jr., divided the same by his will between his two sons, Isaac and Mahlon Paxson, giving the last named 80 acres lying south of the road. Mahlon Paxson was the father of Asher Paxson, who was the father of Grace, Sarah, John, Howard H. and Hugh P. Paxson. This farm of 80 acres still remains in the Paxson name, being now owned and occupied by Alfred Paxson, son of Howard H. Paxson. Isaac Paxson, by a release deed, dated May 7, 1803, released the 80 acres to his brother, Mahlon Paxson. This instrument was witnessed by Asher Paxson and Merrick Reeder, Jr. The remaining portion of the 200 acres was afterwards owned by Mary Paxson, who married Joseph Dilworth, thus passing out of the Paxson name. Since the death of Joseph Dilworth this portion has passed through many hands and is now owned by Joseph Mathews and Charles White.

CUTLER - 820 A

JAMES LOGAN - 1702

REEDER - 820 A

JAMES LOGAN - 1703
JACOB HOLCOMBE - 1709
JOHN SCARBOROUGH, JR. - 1709

John Scarborough of London deeded his warrant in 1696 to son John Junior: unlocated in Bucks County. John Junior came to America between 1696 and 1702, and the family was well-known to Penn. The proprietary commissioners patented the entire original tract 8 to James Logan (in addition to the 500 acres of tract 6), 500 acres in 1702 and 320 acres in 1708. Logan conveyed those 820 acres to Jacob Holcombe in 1709, who immediately sold them to John Scarborough, Jr., in exchange for tract 10 that had originally been patented and surveyed to Scarborough in 1702-1703. Why the switch is a matter for conjecture, but perhaps Holcombe wanted to be closer to the developing Buckingham Friends Meeting, just across the township line; perhaps Scarborough knew that tract 8 was on fine limestone soil, adjacent to the Great Spring tract 6 of Logan. Tract 10 was mainly on soil of sandstone origin: good, but not as good; and Scarborough obviously was interested in farming, as shown by his development of farms for his family and related persons.

John Scarborough, Jr. and wife Mary built the first house on tract 8, lot 1.

[Another account, as set forth in Davis, History of Bucks County, Vol 3 is that John Senior came to America about 1682, and located on 250 acres near present Langhorne; but his wife did not accompany him, although son John Junior did. Two years later he returned to England to fetch his wife, but she declined to emigrate. John Junior remained in Bucks County, hobnobbed with Indians, married Mary (surname not recorded) in 1690; obtained the warrant for tract 10, "settled" thereon (doubtful), etc, through the deal with Holcombe (qv Davis).]

"The scariest part was crossing the Ohio River on a ferry. Us kids and the horses were all scared to death."

A still vivid memory from childhood days for Mary Kaufman, 1369 W. Second St., Apt. 9, is the two-week trip in which her family moved by covered wagon from Crab Orchard, Ky., to the Seymour area back around 1909.

"Dad had a brother living here," Mary said. "Lots of people were on the roads then and they were all traveling with horses; there were no highways, only graveled roads."

The kids rode all day in the wagon, peering out the open back end at the passing scenery. The only chance to get out and run around during the day was when the family stopped to feed and water the horses. Meals were cooked by campfire.

"I remember once," Mary said, "when we were out of bread. My father walked across a field to where he could see a light burning and got a loaf of homemade bread from a farmer. We didn't like it; we weren't used to it as we'd always had biscuits or fried bread."

Born Dec. 1, 1904, near Crab Orchard, Mary Catherine was in the middle of eight girls born to Christian and Martha Baker.

When the family got to Jackson County, her father worked for farmers and in greenhouses owned by the Gaiser family after which Gaiser Park is named.

"Mr. Gaiser used to say nobody weeded lettuce as good as my Dad," she said.

Putting into practice the housework skills she had learned at home, Mary went to work for other people, helping as needed. Her job spans ranged from a couple of weeks to a couple of years.

She married Dewey Acton, who drowned when the second of their two sons was only a few months old. Her second husband, Alfred Lucas, a railroader, died of cancer. They had two children.

SY

In 1956, she married Ervin Kaufman, who died in 1978.

Her children are Earl and Lester Acton, both of Seymour, Eugene Lucas of Crothersville, and Catherine Lucas Clark of Seymour. There are 10 grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Six years ago, she sold her 40-acre farm near Acme and moved into her Seymour apartment. She belongs to the Acme-ettes Club and the senior citizen Young of Heart Club.

Most days she goes for the senior citizen noon meal at Seymour Community Center, where she assists as a hostess. "I see that people sign in and check whether they're coming the next day. Our dinners come from Columbus and we have to know how many to order," she said.

"I try to be nice to everybody," she said, "and they return it. I have a lot of good friends who help me." She walks with the aid of a walker, wears a hearing aid and has had cataract operations on both eyes.

Mary has been a diabetic since 1955 and has learned to give her daily insulin shots herself.

Mary enjoys quilting and crocheting. She does her own housework and likes to add extra touches, such as the many holiday decorations she has put around her rooms for the Christmas season.

A member of the First Church of the Nazarene, she believes in prayer. "Each morning when I eat breakfast, I pray for my kids and my grandkids," she said. "But I don't tell them what to do; I let them use their own judgement."

She anticipates that her family will be in and out for her birthday on Saturday and also that they will all gather as usual on Christmas Eve for a carry-in dinner at her home.

John,
The granddaughter of Sarah Martha Adams Priest is Wanda Jane Brooks Tate. She lives in Georgetown, IL. Her email is curlyhonda@aol.com Janette and I goofed about getting her to the reunion. Janette misplaced her email address and tel. #. We would not be able to find her house. Lives way back off main roads.
Get intouch with her. It will please her that you want her information. She doesn't always get back with you right away, as she works. She has been away from the genealogy for a while also. Taylor Adams was her direct link. Jack, Bob and Dude were uncles and aunt to her. At least she called Dude aunt.
I was so disappointed that she couldn't be at the reunion. She was too. She has given us a lot of info on Taylor Adams.
I am in process of moving stuff to new house, finishing up with this house, and weeping thru it all. The 18th will mark 5 years since my husband died, so leaving this house where we were last together is hard. It sure does not seem like 5 years since he died. Just, still like only a few months.
I think going to this reunion is the most excited I have been since he died. I loved meeting you all, and being with my first cousins the Robertsons again. I grew up with them, and needless to say, I love them dearly. They are so funny.
Sure hope you had a good time and felt comfortable. It was great that we could continue with the reunion at Donna's house.
Let me know if you get the infor from Wanda. If she doesn't have time to get it to you, I will. Just thought it would be nice if you contacted her and ask her. I think it would please her that you want her family info. Put in the subject line in the email to her, relation of Janette and Paula. Then she will know it is okay to answer the email.
Take care,
Cuz Paula

John,
The granddaughter of Sarah Martha Adams Priest is Wanda Jane Brooks Tate. She lives in Georgetown, IL. Her email is curlyhonda@aol.com Janette and I goofed about getting her to the reunion. Janette misplaced her email address and tel. #. We would not be able to find her house. Lives way back off main roads.
Get intouch with her. It will please her that you want her information. She doesn't always get back with you right away, as she works. She has been away from the genealogy for a while also. Taylor Adams was her direct link. Jack, Bob and Dude were uncles and aunt to her. At least she called Dude aunt.
I was so disappointed that she couldn't be at the reunion. She was too. She has given us a lot of info on Taylor Adams.
I am in process of moving stuff to new house, finishing up with this house, and weeping thru it all. The 18th will mark 5 years since my husband died, so leaving this house where we were last together is hard. It sure does not seem like 5 years since he died. Just, still like only a few months.
I think going to this reunion is the most excited I have been since he died. I loved meeting you all, and being with my first cousins the Robertsons again. I grew up with them, and needless to say, I love them dearly. They are so funny.
Sure hope you had a good time and felt comfortable. It was great that we could continue with the reunion at Donna's house.
Let me know if you get the infor from Wanda. If she doesn't have time to get it to you, I will. Just thought it would be nice if you contacted her and ask her. I think it would please her that you want her family info. Put in the subject line in the email to her, relation of Janette and Paula. Then she will know it is okay to answer the email.
Take care,
Cuz Paula

Hi John - Mar 3-04

So nice to hear from you again. Gladly I send you one of the flyers. I am excited to meet you & Mary! Hope & pray all goes well so you can be at the reunion. We are trying to get some of the other cousins (my 1st cousins) there also. (The Robertsons - Ryans - Adams) If there is not enough time for all of us to talk & share as much as we want, Donna Ryan wants everyone to come to her house on Sunday to share even more. She lives in Argos, IN, though. She has room for your RV's. My sister doesn't want to go back over there again due to the mileage. We will be in a rental, AND we only have ONE week to get around to see everyone. There are some Adams that live in Georgetown I would love for you to meet - however - it will be one thing to get them off their farm! This one young gal - about 40 maybe, has 6 or 7 aunts that are neat - but upset with her for tracing family tree.

wonder why: >>| haha oh well -
I would love to go to Donna's next Day - but we are just going to have one car to cut down on expense & "gas". We come back to Phx. June 8th - Tuesday from Indpl.

We are a crazy bunch - we put on skits - so be prepared! We learned from our crazy Mother & aunts on how to have cheap fun.

3/ Excuse my fancy paper!

So if you want to join us in the entertainment - we'd love to have you share. Bev Waddell says you & her husband are a couple of "cards" when you get together. Sounds like you come from the same stock! Humor is our middle name.

I have made my reservations for our flight back ~~on the~~ to In on June 1st. My brother lives in Terre Haute. We hope to spend the last night at his house. He is the closest to airport - & I do miss him so much. He's so funny & yet appears so serious. Real nice person - easy to like.

Drive carefully wherever you go, John. Looking forward to the reunion.

FORWARD

This transcription of records includes both black and white marriages from 1853 through 1890. A few of the black declarations extend as late as 1900. The original records used for reference include; the Clerks' Index to Marriages, Marriage Books 4 through 15 and the marriage returns.

In preparing this index, a basic file was first created from the marriage books. This list was then enhanced by cross-referencing with the Marriage Registers and finally with the individual marriage returns. Information of genealogical interest was extracted and coded whenever practical. Marriage returns provided the actual date of marriage and place of marriage except for ministers homes which were omitted. Care was taken to record the signature spellings of names when available. Questionable spellings were researched for accuracy. Family relationships were coded as indicated in Table I. Other abbreviations are listed in Table II. References to Kentucky and Garrard County as places of residence were omitted to conserve space.

All surnames are presented in capital letters with the bride and groom in bold face type. Surnames in the index were grouped when multiple spellings were obvious. Spellings in parenthesis ( ) alert the researcher to look for the name elsewhere in the index.

Form No. 2.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

ALL MESSAGES TAKEN BY THIS COMPANY ARE SUBJECT TO THE FOLLOWING TERMS:

To guard against mistakes or delays, the sender of a message should order it REPEATED; that is, telegraphed back to the originating office for comparison. For this, one half the regular rate is charged in addition. It is agreed between the sender of the following message and this Company, that said Company shall not be liable for mistakes or delays in the transmission or delivery, or for non-delivery, of any UNREPEATED message, whether happening by negligence of its servants or otherwise, beyond the amount received for sending the same; nor for mistakes, or delays in the transmission or delivery, or for non-delivery, of any REPEATED message beyond fifty times the sum received for sending the same, unless specially insured, nor in any case for delays arising from unavoidable interruption in the working of its lines, or for errors in cipher or obscure messages. And this Company, is hereby made the agent of the sender, without liability, to forward any message over the lines of any other Company when necessary to reach its destination.

Correctness in the transmission of message to any point on the lines of this Company can be insured by contract in writing, stating agreed amount of risk, and payment of premium thereon at the following rates, in addition to the usual charge for repeated messages, viz: one per cent. for any distance not exceeding 1,000 miles, and two per cent for any greater distance. No employee of the Company, is authorised to vary the foregoing.

No responsibility regarding messages attaches to this Company until the same are presented and accepted at one of its transmitting offices; and if a message is sent to such office by one of the Company's messengers, he acts for that purpose as the agent of the sender.

Messages will be delivered free within the established free delivery limits of the terminal office. For delivery at a greater distance, a special charge will be made to cover the cost of such delivery.

The company will not be liable for damages in any case where the claim is not presented in writing, within sixty days after sending the message.

Welcome to the Haworth family history; in America since 1699. George Haworth came to Pennsylvania in 1699 from Lancashire, England.

Many members of our family have added a "y" to their name; we are not concerned about how you spell or pronounce our great family name. (smile)

The Haworth Association of America was formed in the year 1899 at the first national Haworth reunion at Plainfield, IN. We held a 300th anniversary family reunion and celebration in Kansas City in June 1999.

Our next reunion is set for next June 25-27, at Winchester VA.

The planning committee met earlier in 2003, and the draft reunion agenda and information sheet were sent out last September. During the holidays, additional details were finalized. The Application Form (see 2004-Application ) is now available. If you have an e-mail address, and are on our master list, you will be receiving the application notice in January. Snail mail family members are receiving hard copies of the application. Or, please feel free to contact Liz (Haworth) Vause at the number listed below.

Some Quaker Families - Scarborough/Haworth

Roger S. Boone of Springfield, Ohio, spent over ten years researching and collating the Scarb(o)rough/Ha(y)worth families.

Mrs. Marjorie B. Morgan's background is Quaker. She was raised on a farm in a small southwestern Kansas community. She is a graduate of Friends University, Wichita, KS. and Kansas State University, Emporia, KS. In 1986, she retired early from the Wichita Public Schools, making it possible to pursue personal interests -- especially genealogy. She has been doing research for over 35 years, and is the former editor of the quarterly magazine for the Mid-west Genealogical Society.

Roger asked Marjorie Morgan to prepare his data for publication, with the following goals:

1. to provide an opportunity for family members to up-date their family information for publication,

2. to collect photos and documents relevant to the Scarb(o)rough/Ha(y)worth family,

3. to publish a quarterly newsletter, and

4. to prepare and publish the story of the Scarb(o)rough/Ha(y)worth family.

Roger and Marjorie are pleased that these goals have been met. The results are 7 volumes, 4,401 pages of data, photos, stories, and documents.

Ordering Details:

Lowell Scarbrough wrote:

"These handsome volumes are very expensive to produce and a joy to possess. Not the usual, how to, genealogy fare, but filled with family information, facts and data. The margin on them is minimal. They are interactive and I recommend owning the complete set. Hardbound. Above volumes sold separately add up to $479.95."

Hello John,

I made an extra copy of the KY death records for you. The next time we see you, I will give you those pages. Have the death record of Mary Ann SCARBRO ADAMS McQUERRY and Jim BAKER. Both are buried at Stringtown Cemetery according to those records.

Below is the results of my search for BAKER on the Persi Index. These publications are available in Ft. Wayne-Allen Co and LA. Thought this one was interesting.

It comes as no surprise,
That happy look in children's eyes
For it's finally Christmas time!
Merry Christmas! to all

Hope all is well.

Hello John & Mary,

Finally found Jake and Christian's sister and her husband. WHAT a story they would have told. Be sure to read to the end.

Found the death certificates for William online and Louisa's in a book.

Louise Baker Gafney
Death Record, Washington County, Indiana
Age: 55y
Born: ca 1868, Kentucky
Died: 7 February 1923, Washington County, IN
Parents: James F. Baker & Mary Catherine Scarboro
Spouse: William Gafney (d. 13 Feb. 1947)
Married: 15 Jan. 1887, Garrard Co., KY
Buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN

++++++++++++++
Death Certificate 6444

William Gafney
born: 22 Nov. 1867, Kentucky
died: 13 Feb. 1947, Campbellsburg, Washington County, IN Age: 79y,2m, 21d
Parents: George Gafney & Emma/Emily Sandy Renfro
Spouse: Laura Gafney
Cause: Acute Coronary colusion 1/2 y
Residence: West Walnut St., Campbellsburg, Washington Co., IN
Buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN

++++++++++++++++++
They had two children: Infant and Cephus Gafney; Found Cephus Death Record online.

+++++++++++++++++
Cephus Gafney
Age: 35
Born: ca 1886, Garrard County, Kentucky
Died: 25 October 1921, Washington County, Indiana
Parents: Louise Baker and William Gafney, both born KY

Spouse: Laura Mae Wooten
Married: 24 March 1915, Danville, Boyle, Kentucky
Probably buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN
He had two daughters: Golda Ellen (md. Robert Blincoe) & Silvia M. (md. Lester M. Jean)

+++++++++

Laura Mae Wooten
b. 1900, Kentucky
d. 1971, Washington County, IN
Buried: Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN
Parents: Henry E. Wooten & Mary (?)
Spouse 1: Cephus Gafney
Spouse 2: William Gafney
Not able to find the second marriage; maybe common law marriage.

Both of their daughters and spouses are buried in Hop Cemetery, Washington County, IN.

Yes, that is what I found. Laura Wooten "married" second before 1940 to her father-in-law, because she is listed as his wife in the 1940 Washington County, IN Census along with her daughters.

Thought that you might enjoy this interesting find to add to your BAKER book. Hope that you have a family member that is interested in genealogy or will put your books in a library for others to enjoy. If Andrew, who is interested in genealogy (won State in 4-H one year and Reserve in 4-H genealogy last year), he does not take them, then they are going to the JCHC library.

Enjoy and many blessings,
Bev & Hal Weddell

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will be published and packaged with that set of discs. With the publication of every 25 discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that volume of discs. Discs may be purchased as sets or volumes.

Subject: Taylor Adams Info--Simpson ADAMS

Hello John & Wanda,

Thanks for the note. It is nice to hear from Wanda and hope that all is going well now. Glad to hear that you and Mary are back safely from AZ. Sounds like you had an interesting trip--cannot wait to hear about it. Following is an outline of the info that I have on Taylor ADAMS' family--parents and siblings. The info on Taylor was collected at the reunion last June.

Enjoy Bev

Hello Paula,

OH! That sounds like so much fun and to meet relatives is a real bonus. Does the reunion take place for the whole week or just the third weekend in May? We will put that on our calendar and perhaps John D. & Mary will go too. Looks as if there are several RV parks in the area in which we could stay. Sounds great! Do you know where it is to be held in Crown Point?

Both Hal and John are real "kidders!" This must be a family inherited quality. Still trying to figure out the ALSUP family connection.

Hi Bev,
real quick reply for now. As usual, I have trouble getting to bed at a descent hour! I have been trying to fill in information that you and John D. Brown sent. And have you also been in touch with Chris? I think his last name is Robertson. If it is, he is my cousin's son. I have just found Bev and Roy again. I have been trying for such a long time to get in touch with some of the Robertsons. Their mother was my mother's favorite sister. Together those two were a riot! So of course, my siblings and myself were very close to Aunt Pearl's children. We have a Reed reunion about 3rd week of May, Bev and Roy are going to come. If you and Hal are near, would love to meet you, and introduce you to my clan. Most of us grew up attending the Adams Family reunions every year, so my neph ew promised my mother he would keep them going. We put on dumb little skits that our Adams family did. And laugh at ourselves for the foolishness. But we learned how to do that because of our fun loving elders. We have the reunion in Crown Point, IN. Didn't y ou say you are south in IN?
We are considered the elders now!!!!!!!!!!! Oh my. There are 5 of us left. I am the youngest. At least, that is one way of being young. haha. We all plan to be there this year at the reunion.

Hello again,

Thank You--that helps, I think. Is "Taylor" actually, Zachary T. ADAMS, a brother of Mason?

Hi Beverlyn,
Oh that sounds wonderful that you would consider coming to the reunion. We will have it on a Sat. about 3rd weekend of May. We have it at my nephew's house which is a little out of town on a lot of acreage. They have horses. They have this huge barn, so big that it has a inside place to race horses like barrel race or whatever it is called. In front of the barn is a covered area that has cement and well shaded. We put tables out there. My mother and her siblings put on The Adams Reunion every year from 1948 or 9. They were so funny. Always putting on skits. So we carry on the craziness too. We do things like they did. We are training the young ones to let their hair down.
So Hal is funny too. Wonderful. I love a sense of humor. My husband had the most marvelous humor--everyone loved to see him come. He kept me laughing for 45 years. However, before I married him, I got a good dose of it in my family. Nothing like my husband's humor though. My family most all played instruments and 'thought' we could sing. Then my husband came into the family and I found out what real singing was like. haha. He was good. Everyone in my family loved him. Anyway, I am getting side tracked again. You said John and someone else would come. Who are they? The more the merrier.
I was describing the area---big green area for young ones to play volleyball, and my nephew even took us on a hair ride. He used a tractor instead of the horses. I think they are riding horses. Bev and Roy will be there as I told you, and Roy's sister Sandy lives up in that neck of the woods, so she may come.
Have you written to Chris Robertson or been in touch with him? I just got a letter from him today. His grandfather was my most hilarious cousin Allen---Roy's brother. He just never stops with his humor. Out of Aunt Pearl's kids, I think she had 5 or 6 of them that were so funny. As I said, we were close to them growing up. It will be so good to see them again. When their mother died, Aunt Pearl, my mother went down hill after that. She loved her sister so much and was so lost without her. I always said when I was younger, I hoped I stayed that close and have that much love for my sisters. I do. I have three right here in the valley. I am closer to the one that is closer in age to me. Janette is her name. She is one talented lady. Art wise.
Well, got to go to work tomorrow, so will close for now. Did you send me your email address? It only says your name and as long as I hit reply, I am ok. Forgive me if I am forgetting. It is late, I hurt like crazy as I sit here. I was scrapbooking for several hours, so back kind of saying enough pretty loud. Ha.
Will write in a day or so. Got to work tomorrow.
Lots of love.
Paula.
I am so glad you came into my life. I love people, especially cousins-relatives.

We will put that on our calendar and perhaps John D. & Mary will go too. Looks as if there are several RV parks in the area in which we could stay. Sounds great! Do you know where it is to be held in Crown Point?

Both Hal and John are real "kidders!" This must be a family inherited quality. Still trying to figure out the ALSUP family connection.

Hoosier Cuzn,
Bev W.

Hi Bev,
real quick reply for now. As usual, I have trouble getting to bed at a descent hour! I have been trying to fill in information that you and John D. Brown sent. And have you also been in touch with Chris? I think his last name is Robertson. If it is, he is my cousin's son. I have just found Bev and Roy again. I have been trying for such a long time to get in touch with some of the Robertsons. Their mother was my mother's favorite sister. Together those two were a riot! So of course, my siblings and myself were very close to Aunt Pearl's children. We have a Reed reunion about 3rd week of May, Bev and Roy are going to come. If you and Hal are near, would love to meet you, and introduce you to my clan. Most of us grew up attending the Adams Family reunions every year, so my neph ew promised my mother he would keep them going. We put on dumb little skits that our Adams family did. And laugh at ourselves for the foolishness. But we learned how to do that because of our fun loving elders. We have the reunion in Crown Point, IN. Didn't y ou say you are south in IN?
We are considered the elders now!!!!!!!!!!! Oh my. There are 5 of us left. I am the youngest. At least, that is one way of being young. haha. We all plan to be there this year at the reunion.

Early settlers map of Buckingham and Solebury Townships was compiled from a number of early maps of Buckingham and Solebury Townships. These Townships were settled prior to 1690 by English Quakers.

Some Quakers who purchased land from the first owners (grants made by William Penn) are: Brock, Carrey, Church, Clayton, Clemens, Ely, Fell, George, Holcombe, Lewis, Paxon, Pearson, Pemberton, Pike, Stackhouse, Thompson, Wells, Wheeler, Wright and others.

even more striking by the globular shape of the pellet. The ancient sun-god Khepri was conceived of as a great scarab rolling the sun across the heavens. The scarab became as well a symbol of the enduring human soul, whence its frequent appearance, often with wings spread, in funerary art. Quantities of dead scarabs have been discovered in burials of the earliest period, apparently to ensure the continued existence of the soul; the later mummification (see MUMMY) of scarabs stems from the fact that they were sacred to Khepri at Heliopolis. Several stone scarabs of monumental size are known; one in the British Museum perhaps came from the Heliopolis temple, and another stands by the sacred lake at Karnak. The Egyptian name of the beetle was ḫprr (or xprw), a derivative from the stem ḫpr (or xpr) "become," and the hieroglyph  was used to write these and related words (see HIEROGLYPHS).

An important class of Egyptian antiquities is in the form of scarabs of various materials, glazed steatite being most common, but other stones, faïence, and pottery also being used. Such objects usually have the bases inscribed or decorated with designs, and are simultaneously amulets and seals. They first appeared in the late Old Kingdom, when they evolved from the so-called button seals (see BABYLONIA AND ASSYRIA: Art and Art Objects: Glyptic). Scarabs remained rare until Middle Kingdom times, when they became abundant and replaced the earlier stamp seals and cylinders. Pierced lengthwise for stringing or mounting in ring bezels of precious metal, they were also used simply as ornaments; plain amethyst scarabs are common articles of Middle Kingdom jewelry (q.v.). Some scarabs are purely amuletic in purpose, as the large basalt "heart scarabs" of New Kingdom and later times. Such an amulet was placed in the mummy bandages and was inscribed with Chapter 30b of the Book of the Dead, a spell that identified the scarab with the heart of the deceased and conjured it not to betray him in the judgment before Osiris (q.v.). A winged scarab might also be placed on the breast, and later a number of amuletic scarabs were placed about the body.

The seal type of scarab is, however, the most common, and many clay sealings attesting this use have been found on sites of the Middle and New Kingdoms. Spiral motifs and names and titles of officials are characteristic of the Middle Kingdom examples, while on New Kingdom and later scarabs a wide variety of designs and inscriptions is found. Some of the inscriptions, although carefully executed, have been so corrupted by illiterate copying as to be meaningless. Various hieroglyphs expressing luck or happiness may be collected into a design. Real inscriptions are sometimes mottoes referring to places, deities and so on, or containing words of good omen or friendly wishes (e.g., "Memphis [q.v.] is mighty forever," "Amon [q.v.] protecteth," "Bubastis [q.v.] grant a good New Year," "May thy name endure and a son be born thee").

SCARAB FROM THEBES COMMEMORATING THE REIGN OF AMENHOTEP III (ABOUT 1417–1379 B.C.). THE BEETLE IS INSCRIBED TO THE KING; REVERSE (RIGHT) IS COVERED WITH HIEROGLYPHICS

Historically the most valuable class is that which bears royal names, ranging from the 11th dynasty to the Late period. Some great kings are commemorated on scarabs of periods long subsequent to them. Thus Cheops (see KHUFU) of the 4th dynasty appears on examples of 26th dynasty date, and Tuthmosis (Thutmose) III's name is found throughout later times. Nevertheless, distinctions of style and pattern often make it possible to recognize contemporary royal scarabs, and the names of the Hyksos dynasts have been largely recovered from collections of scarabs (see HYKSOS).

A series of exceptionally large scarabs was engraved in the reign of Amenhotep III (c. 1417–1379 B.C.; see AMENHOTEP), all bearing the king's titles and those of Queen Tiy. Five varieties are known; the simplest commemorates the queen's parentage and the northern and southern limits of the empire; another, dated in the king's second regnal year, a great wild-cattle hunt; the third, the arrival of Princess Gilu-Khepa of Mitanni (see MESOPOTAMIA: Hurrians and Aryans) in year 10; the fourth (many specimens), the number of lions slain by the king down to year 10; the last, the creation of the lake of Zarukha in year 11.

A related type of seal-amulet, called by Egyptologists the scaraboid, is similar in shape but lacks the details of the beetle's anatomy. Egyptian scarabs were carried by trade over all the eastern Mediterranean and to Mesopotamia. The Greeks, especially in their Egyptian colony of Naukratis, imitated them in soft paste. The finest Etruscan gems of the 6th and 5th centuries B.C. are in the form of scarabs, inspired by Egyptian imports.

(F. LL. G.; N. B. MI.)

SCARAMOUCH (English spelling) is the stage character of a comic servant created by the Italian actor Tiberio Fiorillo, leader of a company of impromptu players, who acted in Paris in 1645–47 and frequently shared the stage of the Palais-Royal with Molière from 1662 to 1673. Before going to Paris, Fiorillo had made a name for himself as a member of the Uniti company, in which he had acted the Captain's part under the name of Scaramuccia. At what point he dropped the braggart soldier and became the comic servant it is impossible to tell. As Scaramouche (the French spelling) he charmed Parisians with the finesse and suppleness of his miming. He relied very little on the spoken word, placing all the emphasis on expressive body movement. Molière learned many tricks of his trade by watching the performances of Fiorillo. In a satirical print the French actor is portrayed as aping the Italian master. (A. M. N.)

SCARBOROUGH, a municipal borough of the North Riding of Yorkshire, Eng., is 41 mi. (66 km.) NE of York by road. Pop. (1961) 43,061. Scarborough lies behind a peninsula of high land on which the ruins of the castle stand like a sentinel overlooking the North and South bays. The castle was built during the reign of King Stephen about 70 years after the town was raided by Harald Hardraade (see HARALD III) in 1066. In 1312 the earl of Pembroke captured Piers Gaveston, earl of Cornwall, after laying siege to the castle. It fell to Parliamentary forces in 1645 and 1648, and from 1665 to 1666 the Quaker George Fox was imprisoned there.

Scarborough is probably the oldest seaside resort in England, and it is now generally accepted that its name derived from a character in the Icelandic Kormaks Saga, which tells how two Viking brothers, Kormak and Thorgils, were the first men to set up a stronghold there (from 965 to 967). As Thorgils was nicknamed "Skarthi the harelipped," the derivation of Scarborough's medieval name Scardeburg, from Skarthiburg, seems probable. Scarborough was granted its first charter by Henry II in 1181. In the burial ground of the parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin (Early English) is the grave of Anne Brontë (d. 1849).

By 1660 the merits of the Scarborough "spaw" were becoming known throughout the country and the first spa water cistern was even more striking by the globular shape of the pellet. The ancient sun-god Khepri was conceived of as a great scarab rolling the sun across the heavens. Nevertheless, distinctions of style and pattern often make it possible to recognize contemporary royal scarabs, and the names of the Hyksos dynasts have been largely recovered from collections of scarabs (see HYKSOS).

A series of exceptionally large scarabs was engraved in the reign of Amenhotep III (c. 1417–1379 B.C.; see AMENHOTEP), all bearing the king's titles and those of Queen Tiy. Five varieties are known; the simplest commemorates the queen's parentage and the northern and southern limits of the empire; another, dated in the king's second regnal year, a great wild-cattle hunt; the third, the arrival of Princess Gilu-Khepa of Mitanni (see MESOPOTAMIA: Hurrians and Aryans) in year 10; the fourth (many specimens), the number of lions slain by the king down to year 10; the last, the creation of the lake of Zarukha in year 11.

A related type of seal-amulet, called by Egyptologists the scaraboid, is similar in shape but lacks the details of the beetle's anatomy. Egyptian scarabs were carried by trade over all the eastern Mediterranean and to Mesopotamia. The Greeks, especially in their Egyptian colony of Naukratis, imitated them in soft paste. The finest Etruscan gems of the 6th and 5th centuries B.C. are in the form of scarabs, inspired by Egyptian imports.

SCARAMOUCH (English spelling) is the stage character of a comic servant created by the Italian actor Tiberio Fiorillo, leader of a company of impromptu players, who acted in Paris in 1645–47 and frequently shared the stage of the Palais-Royal with Molière from 1662 to 1673. Before going to Paris, Fiorillo had made a name for himself as a member of the Uniti company, in which he had acted the Captain's part under the name of Scaramuccia. At what point he dropped the braggart soldier and became the comic servant it is impossible to tell. As Scaramouche (the French spelling) he charmed Parisians with the finesse and suppleness of his miming. He relied very little on the spoken word, placing all the emphasis on expressive body movement. Molière learned many tricks of his trade by watching the performances of Fiorillo. In a satirical print the French actor is portrayed as aping the Italian master. (A. M. N.)

SCARBOROUGH, a municipal borough of the North Riding of Yorkshire, Eng., is 41 mi. (66 km.) NE of York by road. Pop. (1961) 43,061. Scarborough lies behind a peninsula of high land on which the ruins of the castle stand like a sentinel overlooking the North and South bays. The castle was built during the reign of King Stephen about 70 years after the town was raided by Harald Hardraade (see HARALD III) in 1066. In 1312 the earl of Pembroke captured Piers Gaveston, earl of Cornwall, after laying siege to the castle. It fell to Parliamentary forces in 1645 and 1648, and from 1665 to 1666 the Quaker George Fox was imprisoned there.

Scarborough is probably the oldest seaside resort in England, and it is now generally accepted that its name derived from a character in the Icelandic Kormaks Saga, which tells how two Viking brothers, Kormak and Thorgils, were the first men to set up a stronghold there (from 965 to 967). As Thorgils was nicknamed "Skarthi the harelipped," the derivation of Scarborough's medieval name Scardeburg, from Skarthiburg, seems probable. Scarborough was granted its first charter by Henry II in 1181. In the burial ground of the parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin (Early English) is the grave of Anne Brontë (d. 1849).

By 1660 the merits of the Scarborough "spaw" were becoming known throughout the country and the first spa water cistern was even more striking by the globular shape of the pellet. The ancient sun-god Khepri was conceived of as a great scarab rolling the sun across the heavens. The scarab became as well a symbol of the enduring human soul, whence its frequent appearance, often with wings spread, in funerary art. Quantities of dead scarabs have been discovered in burials of the earliest period, apparently to ensure the continued existence of the soul; the later mummification (see MUMMY) of scarabs stems from the fact that they were sacred to Khepri at Heliopolis. Several stone scarabs of monumental size are known; one in the British Museum perhaps came from the Heliopolis temple, and another stands by the sacred lake at Karnak. The Egyptian name of the beetle was ḫprr (or xprw), a derivative from the stem ḫpr (or xpr) "become," and the hieroglyph was used to write these and related words (see HIEROGLYPHS).

An important class of Egyptian antiquities is in the form of scarabs of various materials, glazed steatite being most common, but other stones, faïence, and pottery also being used. Such objects usually have the bases inscribed or decorated with designs, and are simultaneously amulets and seals. They first appeared in the late Old Kingdom, when they evolved from the so-called button seals (see BABYLONIA AND ASSYRIA: Art and Art Objects: Glyptic). Scarabs remained rare until Middle Kingdom times, when they became abundant and replaced the earlier stamp seals and cylinders. Pierced lengthwise for stringing or mounting in ring bezels of precious metal, they were also used simply as ornaments; plain amethyst scarabs are common articles of Middle Kingdom jewelry (q.v.). Some scarabs are purely amuletic in purpose, as the large basalt "heart scarabs" of New Kingdom and later times. Such an amulet was placed in the mummy bandages and was inscribed with Chapter 30b of the Book of the Dead, a spell that identified the scarab with the heart of the deceased and conjured it not to betray him in the judgment before Osiris (q.v.). A winged scarab might also be placed on the breast, and later a number of amuletic scarabs were placed about the body.

The seal type of scarab is, however, the most common, and many clay sealings attesting this use have been found on sites of the Middle and New Kingdoms. Spiral motifs and names and titles of officials are characteristic of the Middle Kingdom examples, while on New Kingdom and later scarabs a wide variety of designs and inscriptions is found. Some of the inscriptions, although carefully executed, have been so corrupted by illiterate copying as to be meaningless. Various hieroglyphs expressing luck or happiness may be collected into a design. Real inscriptions are sometimes mottoes referring to places, deities and so on, or containing words of good omen or friendly wishes (e.g., "Memphis [q.v.] is mighty forever," "Amon [q.v.] protecteth," "Bubastis [q.v.] grant a good New Year," "May thy name endure and a son be born thee").

Scarborough was granted its first charter by Henry II in 1181. In the burial ground of the parish Church of St. Mary the Virgin (Early English) is the grave of Anne Brontë (d. 1849).

By 1660 the merits of the Scarborough "spaw" were becoming known throughout the country and the first spa water cistern was built in 1698, a governor of the spa being appointed by the corporation. Many new inns catered for the "spaws"—as the visitors were known—and in the 18th century began the fashion of combining the taking of the spa waters with bathing in the sea. Thus it was that Scarborough first became famous as a sea-bathing resort. Its two bays are linked by the Marine Drive, a sea defense around the base of Castle Hill, which was opened in 1908. The modern town extends a considerable distance inland, its southern limits being dominated by Oliver's Mount (said to have been named after Oliver Cromwell) on which stands the war memorial, a gigantic obelisk.

Old houses are still to be found in Sandside and other steep winding lanes at the back of the harbour, which is enclosed by the East and West piers and divided into two basins by the Vincent Pier, at the end of which stands the lighthouse. There are two splendid beaches with boating and bathing in both bays and boating in two of the gardens and parks. On an island in the lake of Northstead Manor Gardens is the stage of the Open Air Theatre, while the auditorium, which seats 7,000 spectators, rises up the facing hillside. Wood End, formerly the home of the Sitwell family, is a museum devoted to natural history and includes a vivarium. There is also a collection of books, manuscripts, etc., connected with the Sitwells.

The stewardship of the ancient manor of Northstead, which lies under the lake in the nearby Peasholm Gardens, is given alternatively with that of the Chiltern Hundreds to members of Parliament who adopt the traditional method of retirement by taking "an office of profit under the crown."

The resort is famous for its cricket festival and tennis and golf tournaments, the latter being played on the championship course at Ganton, 9 mi. (14 km.) SW. Although mainly a residential and holiday town, Scarborough has a number of small industries. It is a quarter sessions borough and has a separate commission of the peace. (E. Go.)

ALESSANDRO SCARLATTI

In 1702 Scarlatti went to Pratolino, near Florence, where, over the next two years, he wrote four operas for the theatre of Prince Ferdinando III de'Medici; the scores of these works have disappeared. In 1706 he was appointed maestro di cappella to Cardinal Pietro Ottoboni in Rome, and was also elected to the Arcadian Academy there. The following year he held a like post at Sta. Maria Maggiore in Rome and also wrote two operas on a larger scale, Il trionfo della libertà and Mitridate Eupatore, for production during the carnival in Venice. The latter is one of his finest works. Scarlatti traveled to Venice to supervise the performances; in 1709 he returned to his old post at Naples. There followed a period of intense activity during which he wrote serenades and Masses as well as operas. La principessa fedele (1710), Scipione nelle Spagne (1714), and Tigrane (1715) are among his principal operatic successes of this period. The ternary aria form is developed in these works, which are also remarkable for a bolder use of the orchestral stringed instruments. In 1716 he wrote a Mass for Pope Clement XI and in the same year completed his first opera buffa, Il trionfo dell'onore (Naples, 1718). Between 1718 and 1721 he wrote more operas and religious works. On his return to Naples in 1723 he seems to have gone into retirement. He died there on Oct. 24, 1725.

Scarlatti uses thematic development and chromatic harmony with great mastery and in a way which anticipates the work of much later composers, among them Mozart and Schubert. Though he is chiefly remembered for his operas, in which he established the form of the "Italian overture," his chamber music is equally characteristic and shows him to have had a commanding conception of form. Over 500 chamber cantatas from all periods of his life are extant. His church music is of unequal value, though the second of his two Masses with orchestra (1720) marks a new development, anticipating the Masses of Bach and Beethoven. He wrote little orchestral music but he contributed to the development of the opera orchestra. Whereas in his youth the strings were used mainly to play introductions and ritornelli, Scarlatti placed more emphasis on the orchestral accompaniment to the voices. His use of wind instruments was similarly novel: trumpets, flutes, oboes, and bassoons were used for particular effects, and horns were introduced into the orchestra.

SCARLATTI, (GIUSEPPE) DOMENICO (1685–1757), Italian composer whose harpsichord works represent the most fully developed style of keyboard writing in his time, was born at Naples on Oct. 26, 1685. He studied with his father, Alessandro Scarlatti, and became organist at the royal chapel in Naples in 1701. His first opera was produced in Naples in 1703. From 1705 to 1708 he studied under Francesco Gasparini in Venice. There Scarlatti met Thomas Roseingrave and also Handel, who became his lifelong friend. In 1709, in Rome, he entered the service of Maria Casimira, queen dowager of Poland, for whom, between 1710 and 1714, he wrote seven operas. Later he held posts at the Vatican and the Portuguese embassy in Rome. From 1720 to 1724 he is believed to have been both the music director of the royal chapel in Lisbon and the music teacher of Princess Maria Barbara. He was again in Naples in 1724, and in 1728 in Rome. When in 1729 the princess married the prince of Asturias, later Ferdinand VI, Scarlatti accompanied her to Spain. He spent the remainder of his life at Madrid and the royal palaces at Seville and Aranjuez. He died at Madrid on July 23, 1757.

Of his 555 published harpsichord sonatas only 30 appeared during his lifetime. These were published in London in 1738 under the title Essercizi per Gravicembalo ("Harpsichord Exercises") and form the first important group in this series written for the delectation of the Spanish court. The Essercizi and the manuscripts made for the royal family and deposited in the Biblioteca Nazionale Marciana, Venice, and the Conservatorio Arrigo Boito, Parma, are the principal sources for all but a few of the sonatas. The composition of these original works, which form the foundation of the modern keyboard style, occupied most of the latter part of Scarlatti's life. Unlike the suites of Bach and Handel, they are comparatively short pieces in binary form, written in pairs and displaying great rhythmic and harmonic subtleties. The best 20th-century edition is Alessandro Longo's (ten volumes and supplement). Besides his harpsichord works and operas Scarlatti also wrote religious works.

built in 1698, a governor of the spa being appointed by the corporation. Many new inns catered for the "spaws"—as the visitors were known—and in the 18th century began the fashion of combining the taking of the spa waters with bathing in the sea. Thus it was that Scarborough first became famous as a sea-bathing resort. Its two bays are linked by the Marine Drive, a sea defense around the base of Castle Hill, which was opened in 1908. The modern town extends a considerable distance inland, its southern limits being dominated by Oliver's Mount (said to have been named after Oliver Cromwell) on which stands the war memorial, a gigantic obelisk.

Old houses are still to be found in Sandside and other steep winding lanes at the back of the harbour, which is enclosed by the East and West piers and divided into two basins by the Vincent Pier, at the end of which stands the lighthouse. There are two splendid beaches with boating and bathing in both bays and boating in two of the gardens and parks. On an island in the lake of Northstead Manor Gardens is the stage of the Open Air Theatre, while the auditorium, which seats 7,000 spectators, rises up the facing hillside. Wood End, formerly the home of the Sitwell family, is a museum devoted to natural history and includes a vivarium. There is also a collection of books, manuscripts, etc., connected with the Sitwells.

The stewardship of the ancient manor of Northstead, which lies under the lake in the nearby Peasholm Gardens, is given alternatively with that of the Chiltern Hundreds to members of Parliament who adopt the traditional method of retirement by taking "an office of profit under the crown."

The resort is famous for its cricket festival and tennis and golf tournaments, the latter being played on the championship course at Ganton, 9 mi. (14 km.) SW. Although mainly a residential and holiday town, Scarborough has a number of small industries. It is a quarter sessions borough and has a separate commission of the peace. (E. Go.)

ALESSANDRO SCARLATTI

In 1702 Scarlatti went to Pratolino, near Florence, where over the next few years he wrote four operas for the theatre of Prince Ferdinando III de' Medici; the scores of these works have disappeared. In 1703 he was appointed assistant di cappella to Cardinal Pietro Ottoboni in Rome, and was also elected to the Arcadian Academy. The following year he held a similar post at Sta. Maria Maggiore in Rome and also wrote the music of a larger work, Il [illegible] and Il Mitridate Eupatore, for production during the carnival in Venice. The latter is one of his finest works. Scarlatti returned to Naples to [illegible] the performance; in 1709 he was recalled to his old post at Naples. There followed a period of intense activity during which he wrote serenades and masses as well as operas. La principessa fedele (1710), Scipione nelle Spagne (1714), and Tigrane (1715) are among his principal operas of this period. The [illegible] aria form is developed in works, which are also remarkable for a daring use of wind and stringed instruments. In 1716 he wrote a Mass for Pope Clement XI and in the same year completed his first opera buffa, Il trionfo dell'onore (Naples, 1718). Between 1718 and 1721 he wrote motets and religious works. On his return to Naples in 1722 he seems to have gone into retirement. He died there on Oct. 24, 1725.

Scarlatti uses thematic development and chromatic harmony with great mastery and in a way which anticipates the methods of much later composers, among them Mozart and Schubert. Though he is chiefly remembered for his operas, in which he established the form of the "Italian overture," his chamber music is also characteristic and shows him to have had a commanding mastery of form. Over 600 chamber cantatas from all periods of his life are extant. His church music is of unequal value, though the second of his two Masses with orchestra (1720) marks a new development, anticipating the Masses of Bach and Beethoven. He wrote little orchestral music, but he contributed to the development of the opera orchestra. Whereas, in his youth, the [illegible] used mainly to play introductions and ritornelli, Scarlatti laid more emphasis on the orchestral accompaniment to the voice. His use of wind instruments was similarly novel; trumpets, horns, oboes and bassoons were used for particular effects, and were introduced into the orchestra.

built in 1698, a governor of the spa being appointed by the corporation. Many new inns catered for the "spaws"—as the visitors were known—and in the 18th century began the fashion of combining the taking of the spa waters with bathing in the sea. Thus it was that Scarborough first became famous as a sea-bathing resort. Its two bays are linked by the Marine Drive, a sea defense around the base of Castle Hill, which was opened in 1908. The modern town extends a considerable distance inland, its southern limits being dominated by Oliver's Mount (said to have been named after Oliver Cromwell) on which stands the war memorial, a gigantic obelisk.

Old houses are still to be found in Sandside and other steep winding lanes at the back of the harbour, which is enclosed by the East and West piers and divided into two basins by the Vincent Pier, at the end of which stands the lighthouse. There are two splendid beaches with boating and bathing in both bays and boating in two of the gardens and parks. On an island in the lake of Northstead Manor Gardens is the stage of the Open Air Theatre, while the auditorium, which seats 7,000 spectators, rises up the facing hillside. Wood End, formerly the home of the Sitwell family, is a museum devoted to natural history and includes a vivarium. There is also a collection of books, manuscripts, etc., connected with the Sitwells.

The stewardship of the ancient manor of Northstead, which lies under the lake in the nearby Peasholm Gardens, is given alternatively with that of the Chiltern Hundreds to members of Parliament who adopt the traditional method of retirement by taking "an office of profit under the crown."

The resort is famous for its cricket festival and tennis and golf tournaments, the latter being played on the championship course at Ganton, 9 mi. (14 km.) SW. Although mainly a residential and holiday town, Scarborough has a number of small industries. It is a quarter sessions borough and has a separate commission of the peace. (E. Go.)

SCARLATTI, (PIETRO) ALESSANDRO GASPARE (1660–1725), Italian composer of operas and religious works, and one of the most important figures in the development of classical harmony, was born at Palermo on May 2, 1660. He was sent to Rome at about age 12; there he met Bernardo Pasquini, by whom he was greatly influenced, and Arcangelo Corelli. The first of his 115 operas, Gli equivoci nel sembriante (1679), written for a religious fraternity in Rome, won him the protection of Queen Christina of Sweden, for whom he wrote L'onestà negli amori (1680), and in whose service he remained until 1683. These works brought him commissions for operas from Naples, where, in 1684, he became maestro di cappella in the royal service. He remained there until 1702, writing over 40 operas and musical entertainments for the court and its circle. Gli equivoci in amore (1690) is a typical example of his work at that period of his life.

In 1702 Scarlatti went to Pratolino, near Florence, where, over the next two years, he wrote four operas for the theatre of Prince Ferdinando III de'Medici; the scores of these works have disappeared. In 1706 he was appointed maestro di cappella to Cardinal Pietro Ottoboni in Rome, and was also elected to the Arcadian Academy there. The following year he held a like post at Sta. Maria Maggiore in Rome and also wrote two operas on a larger scale, Il trionfo della libertà and Mitridate Eupatore, for production during the carnival in Venice. The latter is one of his finest works. Scarlatti traveled to Venice to supervise the performances; in 1709 he returned to his old post at Naples. There followed a period of intense activity during which he wrote serenades and Masses as well as operas. La principessa fedele (1710), Scipione nelle Spagne (1714), and Tigrane (1715) are among his principal operatic successes of this period. The ternary aria form is developed in these works, which are also remarkable for a bolder use of the orchestral stringed instruments. In 1716 he wrote a Mass for Pope Clement XI and in the same year completed his first opera buffa, Il trionfo dell'onore (Naples, 1718). Between 1718 and 1721 he wrote more operas and religious works. On his return to Naples in 1723 he seems to have gone into retirement. He died there on Oct. 24, 1725.

ALESSANDRO SCARLATTI

Scarlatti uses thematic development and chromatic harmony with great mastery and in a way which anticipates the work of much later composers, among them Mozart and Schubert. Though he is chiefly remembered for his operas, in which he established the form of the "Italian overture," his chamber music is equally characteristic and shows him to have had a commanding conception of form. Over 500 chamber cantatas from all periods of his life are extant. His church music is of unequal value, though the second of his two Masses with orchestra (1720) marks a new development, anticipating the Masses of Bach and Beethoven. He wrote little orchestral music but he contributed to the development of the opera orchestra. Whereas in his youth the strings were used mainly to play introductions and ritornelli, Scarlatti placed more emphasis on the orchestral accompaniment to the voices. His use of wind instruments was similarly novel: trumpets, flutes, oboes, and bassoons were used for particular effects, and horns were introduced into the orchestra.

See E. J. Dent, Alessandro Scarlatti: His Life and Works, 2nd ed. with preface and notes by F. Walker (1960).

SCARLATTI, (GIUSEPPE) DOMENICO (1685–1757), Italian composer whose harpsichord works represent the most fully developed style of keyboard writing in his time, was born at Naples on Oct. 26, 1685. He studied with his father, Alessandro Scarlatti, and became organist at the royal chapel in Naples in 1701. His first opera was produced in Naples in 1703. From 1705 to 1708 he studied under Francesco Gasparini in Venice. There Scarlatti met Thomas Roseingrave and also Handel, who became his lifelong friend. In 1709, in Rome, he entered the service of Maria Casimira, queen dowager of Poland, for whom, between 1710 and 1714, he wrote seven operas. Later he held posts at the Vatican and the Portuguese embassy in Rome. From 1720 to 1724 he is believed to have been both the music director of the royal chapel in Lisbon and the music teacher of Princess Maria Barbara. He was again in Naples in 1724, and in 1728 in Rome. When in 1729 the princess married the prince of Asturias, later Ferdinand VI, Scarlatti accompanied her to Spain. He spent the remainder of his life at Madrid and the royal palaces at Seville and Aranjuez. He died at Madrid on July 23, 1757.

Of his 555 published harpsichord sonatas only 30 appeared during his lifetime. These were published in London in 1738 under the title Essercizi per Gravicembalo ("Harpsichord Exercises") and form the first important group in this series written for the delectation of the Spanish court. The Essercizi and the manuscripts made for the royal family and deposited in the Biblioteca Nazionale Marciana, Venice, and the Conservatorio Arrigo Boito, Parma, are the principal sources for all but a few of the sonatas. The composition of these original works, which form the foundation of the modern keyboard style, occupied most of the latter part of Scarlatti's life. Unlike the suites of Bach and Handel, they are comparatively short pieces in binary form, written in pairs and displaying great rhythmic and harmonic subtleties. The best 20th-century edition is Alessandro Longo's (ten volumes and supplement). Besides his harpsichord works and operas Scarlatti also wrote religious works.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AMERICAN QUAKER GENEALOGY

BY

WILLIAM WADE HINSHAW

THOMAS WORTH MARSHALL
Editor and Compiler

VOLUME III

CONTAINING EVERY ITEM OF GENEALOGICAL VALUE FOUND IN ALL RECORDS AND MINUTES
(KNOWN TO BE IN EXISTENCE)
OF
ALL MEETINGS OF ALL GRADES EVER ORGANIZED
IN NEW YORK CITY AND ON LONG ISLAND
(1657 to the Present Time)
Including Both
HICKSITE AND ORTHODOX GROUPS
OF THE
NEW YORK YEARLY MEETING OF THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS

Note: The material in this book consists of data of genealogical interest recorded in the books of four Monthly Meetings covering the activities of the members of twenty-two Meetings for Worship and other meetings in New York City and on Long Island. These records are supplemented by vital records found in many Family Bibles of early Long Island Friends; also by Burial Registers and Tombstone data from several Burial Grounds, Quaker and non-Quaker, graciously furnished by the Long Island Historical Association, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Names of Monthly Meetings (in this book) and dates of organizations:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| 1. | NEW YORK (ORIGINALLY FLUSHING) MONTHLY MEETING (N. Y.) | 1672 |
| 2. | WESTBURY MONTHLY MEETING (L. I.) | 1672 |
| 3. | JERICHO MONTHLY MEETING (L. I.) | 1789 |
| 4. | FLUSHING MONTHLY MEETING (SECOND ORGANIZATION) (L. I.) | 1805 |

Special Compiler for this Book:
JOHN COX, JR.

Acknowledgment is hereby made of valuable aid in making identifications by references to the collection: "Sixty Long Island Families" (Cocks), and the published Family Genealogies of: Cocks, Cox, Frost, Underhill, Seaman, Jones, and the Oyster Bay "Town" Records 1653-1878.

Skarthi

The Scarboroughs then & now

Introduction

It is interesting to note that the name Scarborough was not the first name used of our line. It was Skarthi, from the Old Norse byname.

According to legend & early records, the Skarthi family left what is now Norway in 874 A.D. to sail to Iceland. They were reputed to be the first permanent settlers of this island. A part of this family left Iceland in 965 A.D. to settle in what is now known as Scarborough, England and from there to London, England.

William Scarborough was born about 1560. Most researchers claim Isaac Scarborough is the progenitor of our line. However, there is no proof of this claim, which is based on the story that John Scarborough born 1667 brought a chest to America which bore the initials I.S in brass nails on its lid and the fact that the same name Isaac is so commonly used in our line.

There are also said to be letters from John in Pennsylvania, History; soc., Archives which mention Isaac. It seems that John was used more than Isaac. Marilyn L. Winton, a Scarborough researcher, points out that J and I were formed the same way, in Old English. The proof that William and Agnes Farrar Scarborough are our ancestors, appeared in the Scarborough/Haworth newsletter in 1994 and in August, 1996. Records were examined by Marilyn L. Winton on microfilm in Bedfordshire, England, of Wolburn Parish; records 1558-1653. Microfilm record was # P18/1/1. One source that says William was the son of John Scarborough born about 1520. I am not sure if this information was on the microfilm records that were examined by Mrs. Winton.

Information came from Kathryn R. Merris. William had two sons named William. One died early. Several families did this; naming another child the same name if one of them died early. William's name was spelled as "Skarborowe" in his will.

His childrens' names were spelled the same in baptism records. The proof that William is the progenitor of our line is from records examined in Bedfordshire, England of Woburn Parishrecords 1558 - 1653 by Marilyn L. Winton.

Microfilm records were: #P18/1/1. His will was probated 24 Sept. 1616.

Notes: William's name was spelled "Skarborowe" in his Will ,29th August of 1616. The words in the will were badly misspelled which was written by Peter King, probably some relation to William's daughter-in-law, Agnes King Scarborough. This is his will as translated by Marilyn L Winton from microfilm ASP/W 1616/86 at the Bedfordshire Records Office, County Hall, Bedfordshire, England.

Signed

WILLIAM SCARBORWE
Peter King writer and witnasse

It appears that administration of the will was given to WilliamHuckell (son-in-law, husband of the daughter Alice) due to the minority of Robert and William Scarborowe. (Robert was 18 and William 16, almost 17, in the year 1616.)

Note: the ii was used by the writer instead of the word two. The spelling and grammar skills of the writer Peter King, were not outstanding, but there was perhaps no one else available at short notice.

Why did our Scarboroughs come to America?

Toward the close of the seventeenth century, William Penn, and other members of the Society of Friends (Quakers) in England, were being persecuted because of their religion. Our line of Scarborough's may never have landed upon American land if it wasn't for this leader. They wanted to live in peace and freedom. Penn persuaded King Charles II to allow them to set up a colony in America. This colony was the state of Pennsylvania. Friends were also called Quakers, because they looked upon all fellowmen as equal in the sight of God. All persons were therefore "friends". They questioned the need for any minister; instead, they depended upon each man's conscience for direction in manners and morals. As no one man was entitled to more respect than any other man, the Quakers refused to follow the custom of taking their hats off to anyone.

This even included the King and Governor.

John Scarborough the first was a Quaker and friend of Penn. Both came to America, probably on the ship "Welcome", a vessel owned by Penn that landed 8th November, 1682. He came to a place near Langhorne, in Bucks county, Pa., where he bought 250 acres from Penn, 3 July, 1682 for 5 pounds. The deed was acknowledged by William Penn and was recorded 2 Feb., 1690 in Doylestown, Pa. in book 2, Pg. 10. In England, John was a Blacksmith, Whitesmith and Coachmaker. John brought with him his son John Scarborough II, a lad of only fifteen years.

In 1684, William Penn and John the elder went back to England. John returned to fetch his wife Sarah, but she was not a Quaker and wanted nothing to do with America. Some say that she was afraid of the Ocean trip but whatever the reason, John chose to stay with her back in England and lived there until his death 21 August, 1706. He was buried in the Burnhill Fields burying grounds, London, England. He signed a Power of Attorney 15 Oct. 1696 to his son John the second. This document was written and signed in the presence of William Penn and William Penn II was one of the witnesses.

SCARBOROUGH

on her some jacob's obit they had him listed as jake and him the son of kate so she went by kate also.

in the 1880 census listed james baker 37,catherine 36,louisa 12,mary e.10,christopher6(christian), Jacob 3. on this cenus that would make catherine being born aroun 1844 i find somne kind of error there becuase her sister mary ann is to believ to have been born in 1844 i believe her to be born about 1840 just my thoughts there. whitch could be mary ann born 1843 and catherine b-1944 according to census papers because mary ann was gave as 37 in 1880 census

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that set of discs. Discs may be purchased individually or as sets.

Please Note:

Submitter information is provided to help in the coordination of personal family history research. Use of this information for any other purpose, including marketing, advertising, or commercial solicitation, is strictly prohibited.

are Scarboroughs in the Kildwick Parish Registers[139] (beginning in 1575), some of Cowling, but none specifically of Summerhouse. A few Smith entries refer to Summerhouse. William and Elizabeth Smith of Summerhouse baptized a son Stephen February 14, 1664/5; later (designated as of Cowling) they baptized four more children—John, William, Ellen, and Mary. Ellen was baptized March 12, 1675/6, just a month and a half after Elizabeth Scarborough, widow, is mentioned in the will of Elizabeth Smith of Stonirakes as then residing at Summerhouse. Possibly the Smiths of Summerhouse had some connection with the Smiths of Stonirakes which could account for Elizabeth Scarborough living there in her widowhood. We suppose that she was the same as the Elizabeth Scarborough, relict of Lawrence Scarborough, who was buried in Kildwick July 20, 1691. A Lawrence Scarborough was buried July 2, 1674, as recorded in the registers of Carleton parish, a locality not far from Kildwick and Cowling. This fits in with the reference to Elizabeth Scarborough of Summerhouse, widow, in the will of Elizabeth Smith, made January 28, 1675/6. Although the marriage to Lawrence Scarborough has not been found in any parish registers of the area, or in Boyd's Marriage Index or Paver's Marriage Licences (1630-1644), there is a single reference to an Elizabeth Halstead in the Kildwick Parish Registers—the birth on January 17, 1640/1, of an illegitimate daughter, Hellen Holstead, to Elizabeth Holstead and Hugo Atkinson. Holstead or Halstead is not a local surname, and this is the only occurrence of the name at this period. It seems likely that Elizabeth Halstead, 21 at the time of the entry, later married Lawrence Scarborough.

In the Carleton Parish Registers (beginning in 1612) other Scarborough records are found. Lawrence Scarborough is recorded as marrying Margaret Pastphen February 11, 1632/3. This wife was buried February 19, 1633/4. Martha, wife of Lawrence Scarborough, was buried December 4, 1640. Paver's Marriage Licences include Lawrence Scarborough, skinner of Carleton, as marrying Martha Lacocke, spinster of Skipton (near both Carleton and Kildwick) at Skipton in 1638. Paver also records a marriage of Lawrence Scarborough, yeoman, 29, of Carleton, to Mary Fairfax, spinster, 23, of Addingham (which is near Skipton) at Addingham in 1641. The Lawrence Scarborough of the last entry would have been born in 1612. If he was also the Lawrence Scarborough of the first marriage, he would have been 21 at that time, and could have married again in 1638 and changed his occupation between 1638 and 1641. No record has been found of the death of Lawrence Scarborough's wife Mary, but she also may have died soon after the marriage. Whether we have here one or more Lawrence Scarboroughs is uncertain, but the Lawrence whose widow was Elizabeth may have married her by mid-1642, as Edward, son of Lawrence Scarborough, was baptized in Carleton parish February 26, 1642/3. Thirty-three years later, January 25, 1675/6, Edward Scarborough of Carleton baptized a daughter Elizabeth, suggesting that his mother was the Elizabeth Scarborough in question. Thus, Elizabeth Halstead whose illegitimate daughter Hellen was born January 17, 1640/1, could have been his mother, and the mother of the other children of Lawrence Scarborough whose baptisms are recorded in the Carleton Parish Registers—Ellen, August 14, 1651, and William, January 26, 1653/4. (There may have been other children, but there is a break in the Carleton registers between 1654 and 1671.) There is only a burial entry for Lawrence Scarborough's son Lawrence, September 23, 1645, and so it is not known whether he was born before or after Edward. In this burial entry Lawrence Scarborough is designated as of Lothersdale, which is a region on the moors between Carleton and Cowling.

Although the facts presented are not conclusive evidence that widow Elizabeth Scarborough was Elizabeth Halstead, and thus proof that Elizabeth Smith of Stonirakes was born Elizabeth Townley of Stone Edge, they certainly make it seem likely.

The hypothesis that Lawrence Smith of Virginia was from Lancashire, the son of Elizabeth Townley Smith and nephew of Mary Townley Warner, is not absolutely proved but seems a strong possibility. It is in line with this hypothesis that he named a daughter Elizabeth, though there is no record of his having had a son Christopher.[140]

Another possibility suggested by Warner's headright lists is that his wife's sister Alice comes into the picture, inasmuch as a Richard Gray (the name of her Norwich husband) appears in Warner's list of 1672 (a son, possibly?) and two other Grays, Thomas and Mary, are in his lists of 1652 and 1658/9, respectively. It is likely that there was some family connection between Augustine Warner and his two other Warner headrights, John in 1658/9 and Jacob in 1672. Perhaps the same Jacob Warner is the one are Scarboroughs in the Kildwick Parish Registers[139] (beginning in 1575), some of Cowling, but none specifically of Summerhouse. A few Smith entries refer to Summerhouse. William and Elizabeth Smith of Summerhouse baptized a son Stephen February 14, 1664/5; later (designated as of Cowling) they baptized four more children—John, William, Ellen, and Mary. Ellen was baptized March 12, 1675/6, just a month and a half after Elizabeth Scarborough, widow, is mentioned in the will of Elizabeth Smith of Stonirakes as then residing at Summerhouse. Possibly the Smiths of Summerhouse had some connection with the Smiths of Stonirakes which could account for Elizabeth Scarborough living there in her widowhood. We suppose that she was the same as the Elizabeth Scarborough, relict of Lawrence Scarborough, who was buried in Kildwick July 20, 1691. ## About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that set of discs. Discs may be purchased individually or as sets.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that set of discs. Discs may be purchased individually or as sets.

About FamilySearch Pedigree Resource File:

The Pedigree Resource File is a new lineage linked database of records available on compact disc containing family history records submitted by individuals through FamilySearch Internet Genealogy Service. Family information is organized in family groups and pedigrees and includes submitted notes and sources. Many charts and reports can be printed from this data. Each disc contains about 1.1 million names. With the publication of every five discs, a master index for those discs will also be published and packaged with that set of discs. Discs may be purchased individually or as sets.

This building was completed in 1901 and had eight large classrooms.

When the town and township schools were consolidated, it was again necessary to remodel and enlarge the building and an annex was constructed. This served as grade and high school for the Crothersville community until 1955 when a new single story modern high school building was constructed.

The first high school graduate in Crothersville was Charles W. Bard. Articles by Otis W. Benham, as published in The Crothersville Times.

WHAT GOES AROUND COMES AROUND

This is an old time saying, meaning what has happened once, can and usually does happen again.This is true of fashions in clothing, architecture and many other facets of our culture, including entertainment. To illustrate the above saying, let us go back to a period in history soon after the Civil War. The War had been long and tiresome, and people of Jackson County were seeking an outlet for their craving of culture. The Sykes Opera House was built. It was a frame structure, and stood on Indianapolis Avenue, west of the Pennsylvania R.R. station. Used for theatrical performances, high school commencements and other gatherings, it served its purpose, but burned in the late 1880s.

THEATRE

Star Dust Drive-In Theatre - Built in 1949.

In 1890 the Seymour Opera House was built. It was a structure of external majesty and internal beauty. It had a clock tower made of wood some ninety feet high. The town clock could be seen and the chimes heard far out into the country. Many famous Vaudeville troops presented shows there, and lectures and concerts captured the people factory.

About 1910 Motion Pictures came along to change live entertainment to movies. A non-flicker Motiongraph was installed in 1911 and movies began in Seymour. The name of the Seymour Opera House was changed that year to its lasting name - the Majestic Theatre. But as it is with all things, time took its toll on the old opera house and it was demolished in 1966. The Princess or Little Theatre and Movie House was located near where the Jackson County Bank Drive In is now located on South Chestnut St. Built in the 1920s it was small compared to the grand old Majestic but was of benefit to the people. It too was demolished to make way for progress and changes in entertainment.

Seymour boasted another theatre, The Vondee. During the time of its construction on East Second Street, the management sponsored a contest concerning a name. Many suggestions were received but the name Vondee was chosen.

The first showing in Jackson County of the world famous "Gone With The Wind" and "The Wizard of Oz" were held at the Vondee. The building is still standing on East Second Street. Movies were discontinued many years ago.

Theatres were popular during World War II, providing cheap nights out for citizens and the 6,000 Air Force trainees stationed at Freeman Field. World War II affected every family in Seymour. People were up tight and nervous because of blackouts, sirens and Western Union boys on bicycles. The heart would beat faster when the uniformed young man appeared on your street. A sigh of relief would pass if he didn't stop, yet one felt such sadness and sympathy for the family for which the message was intended. Another Seymour boy had given his life, was wounded or missing in action.

Food in stores was scarce and rationed, as were gasoline and tires. Pleasures were restricted and put on the shelf for a later day. Finally that day came! The war was over and every one felt relieved and happy and ready for many changes.

One of the most significant changes was to be known as the Drive-In Era. Drive-In hamburger joints, Drive-In Rootbeer stands, later Drive-In banks were popular.

The most significant change in entertainment was the Drive-In theatre. This was a population liberated from the restrained war years. The Star Dust Drive-In was built in 1949. Located east on U.S. Highway 50, it presented the latest movies. Parking spaces for automobiles were equipped with individual speakers. There was a refreshment stand complete with the now famous hamburgers, popcorn and other goodies so that families could spend the evenings being entertained and fed while sitting in their automobiles. This was one factor that caused the demise of theatres in the city and it would remain popular until the late 1980s. The younger generation brought change. They were accustomed to air conditioning, television and comforts of a modern house. Drive-In business slowed down and movies were discontinued.

The Star Dust Drive-IN was used several years by different churches, for Easter Sunrise services. One could purchase coffee and doughnuts, enjoy the church service and not have to wear an Easter outfit because the car provided privacy.

Meanwhile, Jackson Park Shopping Mall was being built on East Tipton St. Several stores occupied the buildings and a theatre called Jackson Park Cinema was located at the end of the street. Recently it has been enlarged and has a beautiful lobby with refreshments. The latest movies are shown here and presently it is the only theatre in Seymour and Jackson County.

A hundred years have passed and "WHAT HAS GONE AROUND HAS COME AROUND." Today we enjoy videos and VCRs in our homes. We can tape movies when we have to be away from home and view them later. We can sit in our recliner chairs and enjoy programs on every conceivable subject. These programs are brought to us by satellite dishes or cable from over 100 different stations.

What a wonderful time in history to live! Submitted by Sara Marling Lucas

LEGACY OF FREEMAN FIELD

Because of the important role Freeman Field playing in the history of the community and its role in the war effort, the time is appropriate to remember this advanced training base.

U.S. Air Force regulations during the war years mandated that an official history be compiled by each military installation. Freeman Field responded with a sizable volume of material submitted to Air Force headquarters.

Unfortunately, much of this history has been lost — at least the organizations now charged with the custody of the records cannot locate them.

Newspaper articles have been very valuable, but author Lou Osterman was most fortunate in locating individuals, both local and out-of-town, who came forward to be interviewed or submitted letters recounting their experiences during that era.

The 65 pages of material resulted from these interviews, letters and press accounts provided the information for this article.

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. These words, penned by Charles Dickens to describe Europe of the French Revolution, could just as well have described the early months of 1942.

Wolfpacks of U-boats sank Allied tonnage in the Atlantic while Romme's Afrika Korp confronted the British 8th Army in North Africa. In the Pacific, Bataan fell on April 9, and Corregidor on May 6.

The latter date was also significant much closer to home as it was May 6, 1942, that an announcement came from the War Department that an advance pilot training school would be located on 2, 560 acres of rolling farmland near Seymour, IN.

With that bulletin from Washington, 22 farm families, families with the names Miller, Kasting, Betenbrock, Alberring and others, realized that the farms some of which had been owned and developed for several generations, would be condemned and the contours of the land, which some had known since childhood, would be changed forever.

"Jim" , Esther and Louis Schneider.

But for many communities across the nation, the bleak headlines from around the world also meant recovery — recovery finally from a depression that had stubbornly persisted for more than 10 years. For Seymour, that May 6 bulletin from Washington meant unprecedented activity ahead.

Two-thousand five-hundred jobs materialized over the subsequent weeks. Eight hundred became permanent after the new school was activated. Seymour's population leaped from a probable 8,600 in 1942 to 14,100 in 1943.

The explosive expansion of the U.S. Army Air Force after the attack on Pearl Harbor dictated that new training sites be found as far north as Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

Even though flying weather was considered marginal in those states, the air space over southern states was saturated and suitable locations could no longer be found there.

Consequently, April 1, 1942, found two officers from Southeast Training Center, Maxwell Field, AL, setting out to look at Terre Haute, Belleville, IL and Paducah, KY, as possible sites for an airfield.

Since one member of this informal little committee was a Seymour native (Capt. Paul Presuss), he suggested that they also look there. A few days later, when all the sites had been surveyed, the two officers recommended the Indiana site near Seymour because of several positive qualities:

Population of about 10,000, excellent rail/highway transportation, proximity to large metropolitan areas and adjacent flat land. The War Department later termed the site almost perfect.

In subsequent weeks, the huge work force put its shoulder to the task of carving an airport out of rich farmland. The work pushed ahead around the clock in an effort to meet the activation date of Dec. 1, 1942. A date which found the base only 75 percent complete.

Col. Elmer T. Rundquist was named commanding officer and welcomed the first contingent of 500 troops on Dec. 8, 1942. Rundquist had come to Seymour from the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland and remained as commanding officer until Feb. 28, 1945.

At the time of activation, the post was known only as Seymour Army Air Field. The name was changed to Freeman Army Air Field in March 1943, having been named after Capt. Richard S. Freeman of Winamac, IN.

Capt. Freeman, a 1930 graduate of West Point, has gained a reputation as an outstanding pilot, taking part in flights to such far-flung points as Argentina and Alaska. He died in the crash of a B-17 bomber early in the war.

In July 1942, the Seymour American Legion Post passed a resolution which was the first father in the division," another man answered. Most of the men were 19 or 20 at the time. Average age of those gathered this past weekend was 70. Submitted by Norman Blackmon - Jackson County Banner, May 27, 1994.

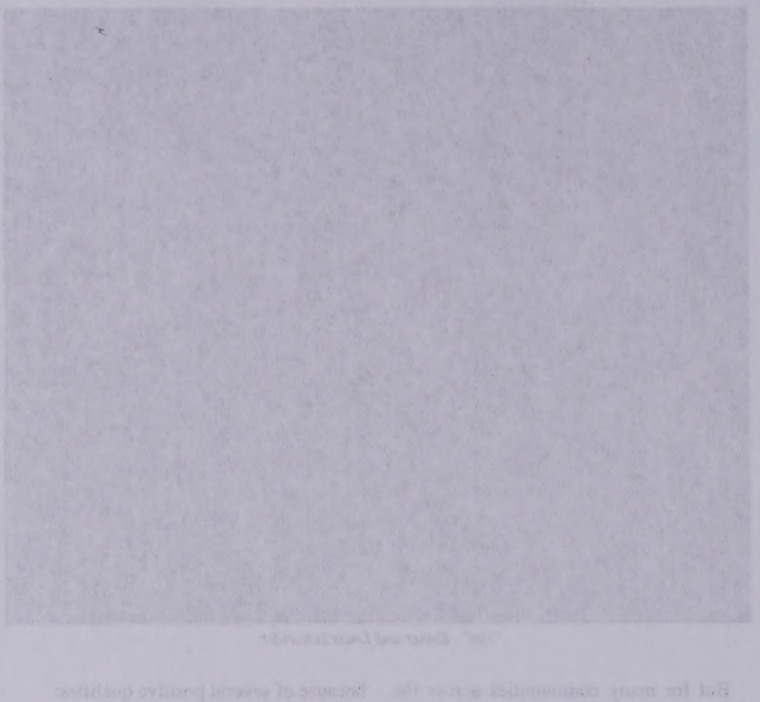
It was the best of times; it was the worst of times. These words, penned by Charles Dickens to describe Europe of the French Revolution, could just as well have described the early months of 1942.

Wolfpacks of U-boats sank Allied tonnage in the Atlantic while Rommel's Afrika Korp confronted the British 8th Army in North Africa. In the Pacific, Bataan fell on April 9, and Corregidor on May 6.

The latter date was also significant much closer to home as it was May 6, 1942, that an announcement came from the War Department that an advanced pilot training school would be located on 2,500 acres of rolling farmland near Seymour, IN.

With that bulletin from Washington, 72 farm families, families with the names Miller, Kasting, Rorenbeck, Ahlbrand and others, realized that the farms, some of which had been owned and developed for several generations, would be condemned and the contours of the land, which some had known since childhood, would be



"ver", Keller and Dean Schnick

But for many communities across the nation, the bleak headlines from around the world also meant recovery — recovery finally from a depression that had stubbornly persisted for more than 10 years. For Seymour, that May 6 bulletin from Washington meant unprecedented activity ahead.

Two-thousand five-hundred jobs materialized over the next several weeks. Eight hundred became permanent after the new school was activated. Seymour's population leaped from a probable 8,400 in 1942 to 14,168 in 1943.

The explosive expansion of the U.S. Army Air Force after the attack on Pearl Harbor dictated that new training sites be found as far north as Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

Even though flying weather was considered marginal in those states, the air space over southern states was saturated and suitable locations could no longer be found there.

Consequently, April 1, 1942, found two officers from Southeast Training Center, Maxwell Field, AL, setting out to look at Terre Haute, Belleville, IL and Paducah, KY, as possible sites for an airfield.

Since one member of this informal little committee was a Seymour native (Capt. Paul Prentiss), he suggested that they also look there. A few days later, when all the sites had been surveyed, the two officers because of several positive qualities:

Population of about 10,000, excellent rail/highway transportation, proximity to large metropolitan areas and adjacent flat land. The War Department later termed the site almost perfect.

In subsequent weeks, the huge work force put its shoulder to the task of carving an airport out of rich farmland. The work pushed ahead around the clock in an effort to meet the activation date of Dec. 1, 1942. A date which found the base only 75 percent complete.

Col. Elmer T. Rundquist was named commanding officer and welcomed the first contingent of 300 troops on Dec. 8, 1942. Rundquist had come to Seymour from the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland and remained as commanding officer until Feb. 28, 1945.

At the time of activation, the post was known only as Seymour Army Air Field. The name was changed to Freeman Army Air Field in March 1943, having been named after Capt. Richard S. Freeman of Winamac, IN.

Capt. Freeman, a 1930 graduate of West Point, has gained a reputation as an outstanding pilot, taking part in flights to such far-flung points as Argentina and Alaska. He died in the crash of a B-17 bomber early in the war.

In July 1942, the Seymour American forwarded to Washington, asking that the post be named Cockerham Field in honor of Kenneth Cockerham of Seymour, the only Jackson County son to be killed at Pearl Harbor.

The naming board declined the request, stating that the new airfields would be named only for deceased flying officers. The name was officially shortened to Freeman Field in October 1943.

Freeman Field's complement of training planes, the AT-10 "Wichita" (Beechcraft Model 26), arrived on Feb. 22, 1943, a couple of weeks ahead of Class 43-D, the first class of aviation cadets to fly them.

The AT-10 had been in production for less than a year and was designed specifically to meet wartime needs.

Most of the airplane's major components were made of wood in order to free critical materials for operational aircraft. The AT-19 was a twin engine, two-place plane with a cruising speed of 170 miles per hour.

Class 43-D arrived on March 2 and began training the following day. The new cadets were not raw recruits when they arrived at Freeman, having behind them 35 weeks of training, including primary and basic flying training and at least 120 hours flying time.

The nine weeks at Freeman Field was the last step before transition to combat aircraft. Freeman Field's mission had been stated specifically as the training of pilots to fly two-engine bombers.

While a sizable number of Freeman graduates undoubtedly did go on to fly twin-engine medium bombers, it is probable that the majority were channeled to the four-engine B-17s and B-24s — the heavy bombers which pounded the Axis from long range.

In Freeman's tenure as a training base, 19 classes of aviation cadets received their silver wings at Freeman Field. The base contributed over 4,000 pilots to the war effort, and while there, they logged over 372,000 flying hours.

No airport in the state conducted more flying operations with the possible exception of Bunker Hill Naval Air Station near Peru (now Grissom Air Force Base).

Long-time Seymour residents may remember being awakened every morning at 5:30 o'clock by the distant roar of warming engines. Night flying began April 5, 1943.

In January 1944, Freeman Field was selected as the site for the first helicopter training school ever established by the U.S. military. Instructor pilots and mechanics were handpicked from volunteers from throughout the Air Force and were sent to Bridgeport, CT, to learn to fly and maintain the new aircraft.

The new school was beset with problems from the first day, especially in the failure of critical parts and the inability to get all the helicopters needed. The first class of 30 pilots did not graduate until Aug. 11, 1944.

This new school was moved to Chanute Field, IL, in December where more extensive shop facilities were available.

The Army Air Force normally tried to prevent men from being trained close to their homes, but occasionally the personnel function allowed someone to slip through.

Two of Jackson County's native sons received their pilot's wings at Freeman: Lt. Oscar Reuter, who grew up in Seymour, and Lt. William McKain of Cortland. Lt. McKain went on to a spectacular combat career which ended tragically in 1945.

Fourteen crashes took the lives of 24 cadets or instructors during the two years that Freeman Field was an advanced training base.

The costliest day was Feb. 22, 1944 when the crashes of four AT-10s took the lives of six cadets all within a matter of hours. Two more parachuted safely from their disabled plane near Rushville. Strangely, the causes of these crashes were never recorded.

Class 44-K, the last to receive their wings, graduated Feb. 1, 1945, thus bringing to an end Freeman's tenure as a training base.

On Jan. 24, 1945, the War Department announced that Freeman Field would be put on an inactive status soon after the graduation of class 44-K.

However, experts, both civilian and military, predicted a glowing aviation future for the post and such deactivation was probably not planned to last long.

Under the command of Col. Robert Selway, March 1, 1945, saw a new unit in place at the field — the 477th Bombardment Group — the only unit in the Air Force made up entirely of black personnel.

It should be remembered that the military was rigidly segregated during World War II.

By way of example, Freeman Field had been the home of the 320th Aviation Sdn. (Colored) from January 1943 until February 1945. The 320th had been made up of 600 black troops who had their own segregated area on the base. But by 1945, the winds of change were in the air.

In early April, three Negro pilots of the 477th Bomb Group tried to enter the Freeman Field Officer's Club which was reserved for whites. A scuffle followed and the three were put under quarters arrest for pushing a provost marshal.

The New York Post picked up the story and reported that 101 other black officers joined the protest against discrimination on the base. All were sent to Fort Knox, KY, to await court martial.

In July, the three pilots were tired by an all-Negro court martial convened under Lt. Col. Benjamin O. Davis. Two were found innocent, and the third was fined $150 for "offering violence to a military policeman." The other 101 officers had by this time been released.

While all these events transpired, the 477th Bombardment Group was moved, once again leaving Freeman Field inactive. But once again, inactivation was of short duration.

Gen. H.H. "Hap" Arnold, commanding general of the Air Force, ordered that a flight test center be developed where captured enemy aircraft could be tested against our own.

The best ideas of the Germans and Japanese might be incorporated in our own aircraft designs of the future.

The site chosen for the new center was Freeman Field, and the post came under the jurisdiction of Air Technical Service Command at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. Col. Harvey C. Dorney was named commander.

Beginning in June, examples of German and Japanese equipment from engines to radar to rockets and all types of planes began arriving at Freeman. Our own early jet-propelled aircraft, the Bell Airacomet and the Lockheed Shooting Star, were also on hand.

V-1 and V-2 rockets from Germany were dissected in the PLM hangar (now the Big Blue warehouse).

The evaluation center proved to be Freeman's last hurrah. The flight test program continued until May 1946. Weekend open houses were held on several occasions throughout the autumn of 1945.

Thousands were drawn to these displays, and Seymour became known for its weekend traffic jams.

As evaluation wound down, the Smithsonian Institute studied the feasibility of creating an air museum at Freeman Field. But Freeman had one serious disadvantage in that there was insufficient hangar space for the many valuable aircraft.

The equipment was gradually moved to the Douglas Aircraft plant near Chicago for storage.

The War Assets Administration announced that the base would be placed in the charge of a small caretaker force until July 1947. Auctions were held periodically until all equipment and most buildings had been disposed of.

In July 1947, the post was turned over to the city of Seymour for use as a municipal airport and industrial park. Submitted by Louis Osterman.

P.O.W. MEMORIES

My last days in combat - starting January 18, 1945 - were to cross the Seigfried Line, the dragon teeth and the anti-tank ditch to capture the town of Orshultz, Germany, about seven miles beyond our lines, with the U.S. 10th Armored to keep our rear flank open in case we had to withdraw B Company. We reached our objective with a hard and bloody battle on both sides. Dead, and wounded - lying around like flies - our own men and the German. The weather was below zero, snow was 15 to 18 inches deep.

As the day went on, the battle raged. Nightfall came. We went back into the anti-tank ditch. During the night we heard tanks moving in. We thought it was the U.S. 10th Armored, but to our surprise it was the Germans 11th Panzered, the U.S. 10th Armored never did show up. As I later learned, the 10th Armored wasn't about to send their tanks out in that kind of weather - so somebody lied to us guys.

Daybreak, Sunday, January 19, 1945, after all night keeping on the ball, we saw we had a big mess on our hands to try to get back to our own lines. We never got reinforcements - but the Germans did . All of us would go up and down the anti-tank ditch walking over our own dead men. We had no alternative and we had to do the best we could even if it meant stepping on our own dead. About 8:00 a.m., everything broke loose! 88's firing at us! More dead-more wounded - men crying for help - loss of men and our fire power ammo was all but gone. About 9:30 or 10:00 a.m, word came down from B Company commander, "Men, you are on your own to try to get back to your own lines." To be a P.O.W. was the farthest thing from my mind.

Some of us guys took out of the tank ditch and headed for a red brick building and from there to the Back woods. The first two who took off got about ten yards and were mowed down. Back to the ditch I went as mortar fire was coming back in on us. At about 11:00 a.m., the choice was to either stay in the ditch to be killed, or to be a P.O.W.

As the S.S. boys took us guys, they walked us by some of our own dead and wounded men telling us in German, "AM soldier, coput, das is goot, das is goot." I saw my platoon sergeant lying wounded and bleeding from his left shoulder. That was the last time I saw him. They walked us on to a place down into a deep hollow. One of our boys looked at me and said, "These . . . are going to mow us down." I thought, too, for a while that it would happen, but it didn't. From there on they would pull one to three or four guys out to ask question. They pulled me out at one place - started asking me different things. I answered him with 'Name, Rank, Serial Number.' They said, "So you're a smart . . . " Then they jerked my clothes off and I stood outside with only my shorts and shoes on for I don't known how long - it was below zero. After I was almost frozen, they told me to come back in, put my clothes on and get the . . . out of there. I asked about food as I was getting pretty hungry. No food. So now we go again on the road. No overshoes or overcoats as these along with our other belongings had been taken from us. Walked for I don't known how long. We did get to a big old building. We thought this wasn't too bad. We were in it just about an hour when in came artillery fire and about blew it apart. We had no food - no water - just snow water.

Next day, daylight, back on the road. Wet shoes - feet about frozen. Some of the guys' feet were already frozen and some of the guys were catching cold. Walked all day and into the night - then they put us in an old barn until the next day. Here they came up with some more U.S. P.O.W.s These guys were sick with cold, flu, diarrhea. They put us all in one bunch. Down we went for another day. Wet feet - wet shoes - and no food. The day came when it happened. Me and another guy were helping one of the sick by holding him on our shoulders while we were walking and he died on us. That got to both of us. He was the first one to die. But within a few days it happened more and more. Now came the day we got food - one piece of black bread! It tasted pretty good with a snowball. The next morning more men had their hands and feet frozen. This was also one of the days they took us through small towns and showed the German people the captured U.S. P.O.W. for propoganda use. Also, they took us guys into a restaurant - something like Wendy's. Opened windows to make the German people believe how well they took care of P.O.W. We were in that restaurant for a long time but never got any food. Next day on the road, here come our own planes shooting at us. There was no way we could let them know we were P.O.W.

Now, we get to Prison Camp 12-A. No P.W. marking on anything. No fire - no hot water - no toilet paper. You did the best you could do - and that was nothing. They put us in these barracks, cement floors with a straw to lie on. The straw was already full of lice. Food we got maybe one a day and again, maybe every other day - was soup with greens and some fat in it. If it wasn't soup, it was a piece of black bread. I never did see any Red Cross boxes. After I had been in 12-A a week or ten days, I was getting sore throat. Kept getting worse so I went to a G.I. doctor and told him. He looked at me and sent me to what they called a hospital. A French doctor looked at my throat and said I had diptheria, which scared me. They took me to a small room and left me alone. Just how long? - it must have been 10 days or two weeks - I lost track of time. During this time, a G.I. came in and said he had medicine and half a shot which gave to me and said he hoped it would help - if not, I might as well forget it all. I came out of it. Then they put me in with some other guys who all had scarlet fever, so I got scarlet fever too.

Next thing I knew, in came some planes. They bombed the P.W. camp, killing a bunch. Again the next day they came through and strafed most of the camp. A week later we got the same treatment. This time, knocked out the main water line and we did without water for a long time.

Next, the Germans gave us some white paint and our own men painted 'P.O.W.' on some of the roofs.

I was returned to the compound again where I learned all my old buddies had been sent to some other P.W. camp. I had to make new buddies. Two days later, they sent me on grave detail - an old box bed wagon filled with dead men to be taken to a trench. No clothes on the bodies - just a German blanket around them. When we were ready to unload the wagon, we were told to remove the blankets, fold them and put them back on the wagon. We rolled the bodies into the trench - some had dog tags

The Orphan Train in Indiana and Michigan

Februay 21, 2004
10 a.m.–Noon

In the mid-1850s there were thousands of destitute children living on the streets in New York City. Immigrant families were often poor and vulnerable to sudden changes such as the deaths of mothers or fathers. To help feed the remaining family, children often took to the streets. In 1853 Charles Loring Brace, a Methodist minister, formed the New York Children's Aid Society to help these children. Forty-six boys were placed on the New York Central Railroad for a trip westward in September 1854. This was the beginning of the orphan trains. From 1854 through 1929 more than 200,000 orphans from the East Coast were sent by train to states all over the Midwest. Most of these children came from the New York Children's Aid Society and the New England Home for Little Wanderers in Boston. Children were placed in forty-seven states during the seventy-three years of the orphan train operation. Nearly 85,000 children, 39 percent of whom were girls, were placed out of New York State between 1854 and 1893.

Al and Dave Eicher are a father-and-son team who operate Program Source International, a video production, marketing, and distributing company. The Eichers received the Historical Society of Michigan's Award of Merit for Distinguished Service in 2002 for their work preserving the history of Michigan through videos including "The Orphan Train in Michigan." Their presentation will cover the orphanages in eastern states, information on Charles Loring Brace, the background of the Boston Home for Little Wanderers, the lives of the orphan train agents, and the voices of children who rode the trains. The lecture costs $10 ($5 for IHS members). Registration deadline is February 11, 2004.

Genealogy Research Workshops

March 26 or 27, 2004
10 a.m.–4 p.m.

Betty Warren will present a program on unlocking your family's past and will give an overview of reference tools needed for family history research, including censuses, vital records (birth, death, marriage), court records, naturalization records, and church and cemetery records. The workshop will also incorporate discussions on organizing the information: note-taking techniques, logging research, and using ancestor charts. Librarians from the Indiana State Library Genealogy Division and the IHS library will be on hand to review specific resources available at their libraries.

Betty L. Warren, president of the Indiana Genealogical Society since 1998, has earned professional certification as a genealogist from Brigham Young University. She owns a family research business, Be It Remembered, and sits on the IHS Genealogy Program Advisory Board.

Seating will be limited to 32 participants per workshop. The workshop costs $30 ($20 for IHS members; $15 for students younger than 23 who have a current student ID). The registration deadline is March 12, 2004. The Stardust Terrace Café will be open for lunch, or you are welcome to bring your own.

The IHS is accessible to those with physical disabilities. If you require special accommodations, please let us know in advance. Phone (317) 232-1882 or (800) 447-1830; fax (317) 234-0079; TDD (317) 233-6615; or e-mail tickets@indianahistory.org.

Researching Jewish Genealogy

April 17, 2004, 10 a.m.–Noon
April 18, 2004, 1–3 p.m.

Susan Kaufman's program on researching Jewish genealogy will present information on beginning family history research with an emphasis on Jewish research sources. She will discuss researching records in the United States to lay a strong foundation for research in Eastern European records. Kaufman is the Jewish collection development librarian at the Allen County Public Library, Fort Wayne, Indiana, which houses one of the largest genealogy collections in a public library in the nation. The collection offers printed and microform sources for the Jewish researcher. Included are federal population census records, ship passenger lists, a nationwide city directory collection, and many other twentieth-century resources important in ethnic research. Kaufman will discuss these sources and others, such as Yizkor (memorial) books that commemorate the towns destroyed in the Holocaust. Learning about the resources available for Jewish family research at the Allen County Public Library will prepare researchers well for a research trip to Fort Wayne.

Kaufman has been a genealogy librarian for seventeen years. A speaker at national, state, and local genealogical workshops, Kaufman is also director of the Federation of Genealogical Societies (FGS), national publicity cochair of the FGS 2004 conference, and editor of the ethnic-international column for the FGS Forum.

These lectures are being presented in conjunction with the exhibit Jewish Life in the American West: Generation to Generation at the Eitlejorg Museum of American Indians and Western Art which will run from February 29 through August 22, 2004.

The lecture costs $10 ($5 for IHS and Eitlejorg members). The registration deadline is April 17, 2004.
